Our City Comment & discussion by THOMAS D. WATSON

The Editorial as a Factor in Discussions of Human Affairs

NEWSPAPERS of today, whether published in a large city or a small town, are judged by their editorials.

These editorials are read and passed upon every day by the subscribers. As they are read they are either endorsed or rejected.

If the writer of the editorial accepts his responsibility as he should and studies carefully over the subject being covered before submtiting it to the readers, they will most likely accord the paper their support.

* * *

THE editorial staff of a newspaper is continually in touch with the life of the community and in consequence is able to judge the public thought in an unbiased way.

A newspaper should stand guard over the people's interests and the welfare of a community. This can be done most efficiently through its editorial column.

There are newspapers that have no editorial columns. They do not reflect the will of their readers. They are purely commercial organizations. They operate money-making machines. They assume no responsibility for the community's welfare. They take less responsibility than the butcher or the baker.

The writer of an editorial at times will be in error, but if the readers know that he has conscientiously tried to do his duty towards the citizens and the community, these mistakes will be overlooked—they will be accepted as honest endeavors.

* * *

IN our editorial of February 2, "Let's Stop Rocking the Boat," we called our readers' attention to the possibilities of Griffith park. This article was accepted as sound judgment by a great many of our readers, but for some reason it did not start any concerted action toward the realization of the recommendation.

There is nothing that could be done by Glendale citizens, next to solving the sewer question, which would benefit our city more than a bridge over the river, enabling us to get to the park without going several miles out of our way.

Griffith park consists of 3751 acres and in time will without doubt be the most beautiful park in the United States. It is now one of the beauty spots of California.

* * *

WHILE the ctiy of Los Angeles was appointed custodian it was the donor's wish that it be used and enjoyed by all of the people, and in accordance with this wish Griffith park is free to all who care to visit it.

It is the natural playground for all the San Fernando valley towns, but none is situated as is Glendale, a short half mile from some sections.

A bridge over the river would make Griffith park a Glendale park.

Why not now?

TWO CHARGED WITH ALCOHOLISM

G. Brummer, 712 West Doran, was arrested at 11:20 Sunday night by Officer Hamilton. He was taken to the station by Officer Claxton, and was booked on a charge of drunkenness, according to police records.

ODD FELLOWS CONVENTION IS CAPTURED

Glendale Secures Celebration of the 104th Anniversary

TO MEET ON APRIL 29

1200 Delegates From Los Angeles to Assemble in This City

In the face of sharp competition from lodges at Pomona, Santa Ana, Los Angeles, Belvidere, Long Beach and Van Nuys, the Glendale Odd Fellows and Rebekah lodges won out at a meeting held Saturday to determine where the 104th celebration of the founding of Odd Fellows should be held and it is to come to Glendale on the anniversary day, April 29. After the matter had been thoroughly discussed a rising vote was almost unanimous in favor of Glendale. Last year it was held at Whittier with an attendance of 1200 to 1500 delegates from the lodges of Los Angeles county.

Mrs. Carl Schwitters, Noble Grand of Carnation Rebekah Lodge, this city, was made general chairman of the anniversary committee, and will name sub committees during the week.

The entertainment committee is composed of H. W. Hollenbeck, this city, chairman; Mr. Hester of Los Angeles and Mr. Wilde of Van Nuys.

On the executive committee are J. S. Anderson, chairman, and Rev. Hunt of Los Angeles.

A meeting of all the committees will be held Friday evening at Odd Fellows hall to arrange for a program of entertainment for the entire day, which will include a ball game and other athletic events and dancing in the afternoon and evening.

The mayor and city council of Glendale have offered the free use of the city park, pavilion and equipment for the day, the chamber of commerce and other civic and fraternal organizations have pledged assistance and there is every prospect of a big day in which all Glendale will unite to welcome the Odd Fellows from other cities.

COSTUME BALL IS TO BE GIVEN BY THE PYTHIANS

The Pythian Sisters of Glendale are planning to give a costume ball in the Knights of Pythias hall, corner Park and Brand on the evening of March 16. Prizes will be given for the dancing and the music for the evening will be furnished by the Kelly Shrine club orchestra.

Several members of the local Pythian Sister organization attended the convention of the Pythian Sisters of the 18th district, which was held at 230 South Spring st., Saturday. The delegation included Mrs. S. A. Jollisse, Mrs. W. J. Hibbert, Mrs. J. Chrisman, Mrs. F. Peters, Mrs. R. H. Boose and Mrs. James Wilbur.

SONG LEADERS' CLUB TO MEET TONIGHT

The recently organized Glendale Community Service Song Leaders' Club, of which Mrs. W. A. Kulp is president, will meet at 7:30 o'clock tonight in the music room of the high school to continue the work started under the direction of Alexander Stewart and also for a social evening. Each one attending will have an opportunity to direct songs. At this meeting the regular club meeting dates will also be decided upon. Anyone interested in song leading is invited to attend.

WILD FLOWERS TO BE STUDIED HERE

All persons interested in the study of the California wild flowers are invited to attend a meeting to be held tonight at the home of Mrs. H. C. Ackley, 236 North Kenwood street, at 7:30 o'clock for the purpose of organizing a Nature Study club.

U. S. ARMY TO RECRUIT IN CITY

Sergt. A. T. Coahran of the United States army recruiting office at 543 South Main street, Los Angeles, will be at the Glendale post office on March 5 and 19 for the purpose of enlisting men for the Ninth corps area and Honolulu. He states that all branches of the service are open for enlistment.

THIS HEN HAS SOMETHING TO CACKLE ABOUT

Some egg!

Mrs. Mary Reese, 1138 East Elk called at the Glendale Daily Press office this morning and exhibited an egg that one of her Rhode Island Red hens presented to her. It was a pippin. In circumference it measured 9 inches one way and 6 the other.

The facts show that it was not an egg after all—it was an eggs. Here's how: Within the big egg was a smaller egg, which also had a regular shell. Both eggs had yolks.

The hen that produced this freak doubtless meant it for "twins."

Indian Princess Thanks and Appreciates Miss Orff's Review

February 28, 1923.
Enroute

Miss Corinne Orff,
Care Glendale Daily Press,
Glendale, Calif.

My Dear Miss Orff: It has given me much pleasure to read your review covering my appearance with Mr. Cadman in your city on January 4, and I take this opportunity to sincerely thank you for your kind and friendly spirit to me and my work.

With grateful appreciation, I am, cordially and sincerely,
TSIANINA.

LA RAMADA CONSERVATION IS STARTED

Casa Verdugo Art Association Elects Officers

At the meeting of the Casa Verdugo Art association held at La Ramada, Sunday afternoon, the roster of officers was completed by elections to fill vacancies, the full list being: Mrs. Roy Ballagh, president; Harold Schwartz, vice-president; Miss Annie McIntyre, second vice-president; Mrs. L. C. Beach, secretary; Miss Alice Livsey, treasurer; L. T. Rowley, Alexander Mitchell, L. R. Richardson, and Stephen McGroarty, executive committee.

The program included a most interesting demonstration of landscape construction by Walter L. Cheever, which was much enjoyed and applauded.

An article from the Berkeley Press was read stating that the chamber of commerce of that city has offered Mr. Pearson the etcher, or any other equally well known artist, to stand sponsor for him, provide him with living quarters and to introduce him to the public, the aim being to encourage art and to make Berkeley an art center.

In commenting on the announcement, John Cotton of this city said he had lived here for five years and had not had a picture exhibit in all that time because he had no place except his own home in which to hold it.

DAINTY SHOWER AT TROTTER HOME FOR BRIDE

On Saturday, March 3, Mrs. J. A. Trotter, 340 West Myrtle street, Glendale, and her sister, Mrs. W. H. Engle of Los Angeles, gave a pre-nuptial luncheon at the home of the former, in honor of Miss Helena Constance Dennison, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John B. Dennison, 2138 Baxter street, Los Angeles, who is to be married on the 14th inst. to Mr. John Preston of Big Bear.

The table was decorated with spring flowers, and each place card represented a tiny umbrella in a miniature shower. Fruit cocktail, a salad, coffee, warm biscuits, with a sweet relish, were served. To the strains of Lohengrin wedding march, and resting on a bed of smilax and orange buds, a cake, done in white and pink design, upon which stood a tiny doll bride, dressed in white satin gown, maline veil and pearl coronet, was placed in front of the bride-elect, who graciously cut the confection as ice cream was being served.

The guests present were: Mr. and Mrs. John B. Dennison, Miss Helena Constance Dennison, Miss Leithley, Miss Mary Ellen Fitzgerald, Miss Zella Roach and the Misses Delta and Helen Sharce, all of Los Angeles, and Miss Winifred Milliard of Hollywood.

The gifts included a mahogany mantel clock, several sets of bath towels, complete aluminum outfit for kitchen, tea apron, guest towels, silk bandeaux and embroidered lunch sets.

Y. M. C. A. BOYS HIKE

A crowd of Y. M. C. A. boys under the leadership of W. G. Boyd, spent Saturday at Santa Monica beach and had a very jolly day together. M. P. Harrison accompanied them.

HIGH ORATORS TO COMPETE FOR BIG PRIZE

$1500 Is Offered for the Best Oration on Constitution

Aspiring orators of Glendale high are to have an opportunity to compete for a prize of $1500 in cash or a trip to Europe, in a big oratorical contest in which representatives of all the high schools of Southern California as far north as Fresno county will be asked to enter for orations on "The Constitution."

The prizes are being offered by a group headed by Dr. John Willis Baer and Dr. Bovard, and in addition to the major prize, $50 will be given as a district prize. As Glendale is the 17th district, one of her orators is certain to win that amount.

The matter was presented by Randolph Leigh to the students of Glendale high at a special assembly on Friday. Mr. Leigh is the author of "The Citadel of Freedom." He explained that the main purpose of the contest is to inspire study of the national constitution and through the orations to bring home to the hearts of the people its splendid message. The students were much interested in what he had to say and the eloquent manner in which he said it. At the roll rooms today the names of prospective competitors will be handed in. The public speaking department of the school will coach the speakers and the try-outs will begin March 24. The final contest, which will not be until May 11, will take place in Los Angeles.

Under contest conditions the orations must be original, they must not exceed 2000 words nor consume more than 15 minutes for their delivery. Suggested themes on which students may speak are: "The Constitution, Our Citadel of Freedom," "George Washington and the Constitution," James Madison, the Father of the Constitution," "Alexander Hamilton, Master Builder," "John Marshall's Great Contribution," "Daniel Webster, the Expounder of the Constitution," and "Abraham Lincoln's Devotion to the Constitution."

TRAFFIC OFFICER RUN DOWN BY AUTOIST

L. H. McConnell Is Arrested for Reckless Driving

While directing traffic at the corner of Los Feliz and San Fernando roads, 4:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon Officer Hamilton of the Glendale police force, was struck by a machine driven by L. H. McConnell of 5429½ Sierra Vista avenue, Hollywood. Hamilton was taken to the Glendale Sanitarium by Officer Simmons, and after being given medical attention he was removed to his home by Officer Baugh.

McConnell was arrested on a charge of reckless driving and will appear before Judge Lowe today.

JAMES W. FOLEY ENTERTAINS FOLKS OF LA CRESCENTA

LA CRESCENTA, March 5.—One of the most enjoyable affairs of the last week was the entertainment given by the service league of the Community church, last Friday evening. James W. Foley, nationally known poet, philosopher and humorist, was the outstanding feature of the program. Musical numbers by Mr. and Mrs. Allan McDaniels and Mrs. Charles Bickel, talented local musicians, added much to the evening's entertainment.

Community Service Singers to Meet

A meeting of the music committee of Glendale Community Service will be held this afternoon at 5 o'clock at the office of A. L. Baird, chairman, for the purpose of working out plans for the Easter sunrise service.

RECEIVES SAD NEWS

T. J. Vineyard, who is at this time at the Glendale sanitarium, received word yesterday that his father, who lived at Caltia, Ill., is dead. No details as to the death or funeral arrangements have been received, so far as can be learned.

GASOLINE THIEVES

Four cans of gasoline were stolen at 12:30 o'clock this morning from the car belonging to Mr. Gross, of 105 North Maryland avenue. The matter has been reported to the police.

FIREMAN'S BENEFIT HAS BIG SUCCESS

Hundreds Turned Away at the Glendale Theater

"THIRD ALARM" HIT

Men of Local Department to Receive Percentage of Receipts

Playing to a "turn away" house was the success which followed the announcement of the showing of "The Third Alarm," which began a four-day run Sunday at the Glendale Theatre. According to William A. Howe, manager, between 300 and 400 people were turned away at Sunday's show, it being the biggest house that has ever been present on a Sunday since the opening of the Glendale Theatre. The attendance at the matinee was double of any, outside of a Fairbanks picture.

Through the generosity of Mr. Howe the benefit fund of the fire department of Glendale is to receive a certain percentage of the receipts from the showing of "The Third Alarm," which will be continued today, Tuesday and Wednesday. The show last night was put on with a prologue, the effects for which were furnished by the Los Angeles fire department, presented by members of the same.

Helene Attell, contralto, who is a pupil of Harry Girard and who possesses an unusual voice, was one of the features of the prologue. George Blix sang very well, as did also the quartet composed of Goode, Blix, Wagnon and Rockwell.

Miss Attell is only 13 years old, but her voice is so unusual the audience often gets the impression she is much older, masquerading in a child's clothes.

The entire show was received with much enthusiasm by the crowded house, and is one in which those contemplating attending will not be disappointed. The plot of the film is most thrilling, and depicts the work of a large fire department in action.

There will be a special matinee for children on Tuesday afternoon. Prices remain as usual. The atmospheric prologue will be used at all evening performances and at the Tuesday matinee.

TEACHERS' NIGHT AT THE C. OF C. FRIDAY

Friday, March 9, will be "teachers' night" at the Glendale chamber of commerce.

At that time the members of the chamber will have as their guests the teachers of the various schools of the city. The members of the chamber are asked to secure tickets for themselves and their teacher guests, the price of the tickets being 75 cents each.

A musical program will be rendered by the teachers, and a buffet dinner will be served. A 20-minute talk will be given by a well-known speaker, after which there will be musical selections and community singing.

The chamber is planning to make this one of the "big nights" of the season.

TWO CARS STOLEN AND ONE FOUND

An automobile belonging to Henry Braun, 800 South Glendale avenue, was stolen from in front of 115 West Elk at 10 o'clock last night. The Burbank and Eagle Rock police have been notified.

Another car, belonging to H. W. Stell, 1800 North San Fernando road, was stolen at about 12:30 o'clock last night. Nothing has been heard of the machine since.

An automobile belonging to Eldorde W. Scott, 4453 Kingswell avenue, Los Angeles, was picked up at 1509 South Brand by Officer Nunn at an early hour this morning. It was taken to the city hall.

GLENDALE REPRESENTED AT ALUMNI BANQUET

At the annual meeting and banquet of the Alumni of the University of Minnesota, held Saturday evening at the University Club, on Hope Street, Los Angeles, Glendale was represented by Peter Hanson and L. T. Rowley. The main speaker was Mr. Keinholtz, connected with the Pasadena schools, who is a noted football referee and who gave reminiscences of university days. He was a classmate of Mr. Hanson.

PASADENA TEAM IS TRIMMED BY LOCAL K. OF C.

The local baseball team of the K. of C. continued its winning streak Sunday by trimming the Pasadena Knights on Pasadena's grounds at Mentone and Hammond Streets, Pasadena. The score was 5 to 1. The features were the stellar pitching and timely hitting of Coleman and the hitting and base running of Coyle, who made three hits, three runs and stole two bases. Third baseman Bradley leaves Tuesday for the Texas league.

WALTER E. COAN IS HONORED BY HIS LODGE

Honoring the memory of Walter E. Coan, the flag over the Glendale Elks Club house on Colorado street is at half mast today. Mr. Coan, who was a life member of the Glendale lodge of Elks, No. 1289, passed away at the hospital in Santa Paula on February 28, 1923, of pneumonia. He was a resident of Fillmore, from which place the funeral services were held at 1:30 o'clock this afternoon at the Masonic Hall, with Masonic rites. Before moving to Fillmore about six years ago Mr. Coan was a resident of Glendale.

DOG BITES CHILD

Ruth Fakler, 418 West Vine street, was bitten at 10:30 o'clock Sunday morning by a dog that, it is reported, is owned by the occupants of 128 West Elk avenue, according to a report turned into the police department by Health Officer Dr. G. Kaemmerling, yesterday.

The dog has been ordered held for investigation.

THE JUVENILES OF MUSIC CLUB HOLD MEETING

The member of the juvenile auxiliary of the Glendale Music club met at the home of Jane Thimm, 505 West Wilson avenue. This was the banner meeting of the year, with twenty-five present. There were three new members taken in and also a number of visitors present.

The program included piano solo, "Invocation to a Rain God," by Marie McSpadden; reading, "Entertaining the Minister," by Marguerite Anderson; piano solo, "Moon Glade," by Eloise Knaus; piano solo, "Melody in F," and "The Lark" (Tschaikowsky) by Betty Hagood; piano solo, "Passepied" (Leo Delibes), by Jane Thimm; Indian war dance, by Julia Pelley; piano solo, "The Cannibal Dance" and "Swanee River Moon" by Gerdon Wattles; trio, "Dear Old Pal of Mine," by Donald Murray, violin; Gerdon Wattles, piano; Preston Hanning, vocal; piano solo, "Amaurette" (Klem) and "Yuccas" (Cadman), by Rebecca Brant; piano solo, "Believe Me If All Those Endearing Young Charms," by Susie Smith; piano solo, "To a Wild Rose," by Gerdon Wattles.

The next meeting of the auxiliary will be held at the Wilson Avenue Intermediate school.

EASTMAN THANKS PRESS IN BEHALF OF SCOUTS

Thomas D. Watson,
General Manager
Glendale Daily Press.
My Dear Mr. Watson—

This seems to be a most appropriate time to express to you on behalf of the Boy Scouts, our sincere appreciation of the splendid publicity which our organization received through the Glendale Press during Anniversary week and the financial campaign.

We found your paper ever ready to print the Boy Scout program of Character Development, Americanization and Citizenship Training, and those of us who are connected with the Council heartily appreciate the service you rendered to the boys through this medium.

Very sincerely yours,
A. R. EASTMAN,
President.

THE GLENDALE DAILY PRESS IS ADMIRED IN OKLAHOMA

February 27, 1923.

Editor The Press,
Glendale, Calif.

Dear Sir: We had the pleasure of reading a copy of your paper today. May we congratulate you on the make-up and general merit of your paper?

It is a credit to your organization and to the community you represent.

Yours very truly,
E. R. WAITE,
Secretary Shawnee, Okla., Board of Commerce.

CAR JINKS HAS CARNIVAL OF CRASHES HERE

Many Machines Tear Into One Another in Glendale

The motorists of Glendale enjoyed an accident spree over the week-end. The god of smashup reigned supreme, the result being that today there are a number of automobiles in the hospital on account of minor ailments. The following are a few of those who figured prominently in the carnival of crash.

Automobiles driven by Mrs. L. L. Leech, Tenth and Grand View, and William Curtis Walker, La Crescenta, came together with more or less disastrous result on Brand boulevard. The car driven by Mrs. Leech was considerably damaged.

C. W. Wilson of Burbank and C. W. Chrisholm, 432 West Milford street, were driving machines that collided in this city Sunday. The cars were somewhat damaged.

Another mixup occurred at the corner of Brand and Doran at 6:45 o'clock Saturday morning, when machines belonging to R. F. Morman, 1126 North Louise street, and a person whose name could not be learned, came together. Very little damage was done.

Ralph G. Preston of Tujunga was driving an auto that tangled bumpers with a car belonging to C. A. Hill of Hollywood on Opeeche way, Glendale, at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Sufficient damage was done to put the cars temporarily in the shop.

Little damage was done in the accident that occurred at the corner of Harvard and Brand at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, when automobiles driven by F. Schnermger, 744 John street, Los Angeles, and Philip Ruskin, address unknown, came together. No one was injured.

REJUVENATION DISCOVERY MADE

LONDON, March 5 (A. P.).—Professor Burton Scammell of the Dover Radium institute has discovered that by the use of radio-phosphate of potash, a man can be rejuvenated in a remarkable manner, according to the Westminster Gazette's correspondent. It is claimed that as a result of the treatment a man can live to be 125; always feel as fresh as a daisy, and develop the square jaw which is an essential feature of the American movie hero.

A retired banker of Wokingham gave an interviewer a remarkable account of his mental and physical transformation as the result of taking advantage of Professor Scammell's discovery. This man, who is 77 years old and who took the treatment for three years, says his eyes are stronger than they were 16 years ago. He can read without glasses, his voice has become deeper and stronger, and he never experiences that "tired feeling" any more.

YEARLY MEET OF Y. M. C. A. ON MARCH 8

To Elect Officers for the Coming Twelve Months

DR. ROACH, SPEAKER

Boys Will Tell of Different Phases of Work Here

The annual meeting and banquet of the Y. M. C. A. of the Glendale district will be held Thursday evening at the First Methodist church of this city when officers for the coming year will be elected and reports of retiring officers will be received.

Dr. I. Frank Roach, pastor of the First Methodist church of Long Beach, who is noted for his interest in boys, will be the leading speaker and the theme of his address will be "Boyville." In it he will endeavor to remind parents of their own childhood and make them look with more understanding and sympathy on their own boys.

Several of the boys, representing different phases of the Glendale work, will speak, and stunts will be put on by the two teams that participated in the drive for the Y. M. C. A. budget, the Live Yers under W. F. Horn and the "Go Getters" under C. W. Ingledue, the winning team, which carried off the "Spizerinktum Cup." Each prophesies that it will humiliate the other by the cleverness of its performance.

MONTROSE STATE BANK BUILDING IS SOLD

S. W. Meyer Pays $25,000 for the Property in That Place

MONTROSE, March 5.—S. M. Meyer of Ramsdale avenue, bought the Montrose State bank building on the corner of Honolulu and Montrose avenues last Saturday for $25,000, Turner & Carson making the sale. The building comprises five rooms and is occupied by the Montrose State bank, the Rinhard Grocery company, Easton's real estate office, Young's hardware store, Frasier's dry goods store. Mr. Meyer also bought the Wadey oil station, on Montrose avenue, through the Montrose Realty company, paying $10,000 for same.

MRS. E. C. PENDROY RETURNS FROM TRIP EAST

Mrs. Earl Pendroy was at her desk on the second floor of Pendroy's Store this morning after a few days' rest following her transcontinental trip from New York and strenuous work there in selecting stock for the store. Almost at once she got busy with a group of friends of San Diego who had hunted her up and wanted her personal service in helping to select their purchases. She found New York a busier place than ever and has many interesting sidelights to throw on prevailing modes in the metropolis of America and business conditions in general.

KENT KORD

Prices to Advance

To introduce Kent Kords "Ralphs way" the factory sold us ELEVEN CARLOADS of Cord Tires at a LOSS to the factory, before their advance of January 15, 1923. Tires were then selling at lower prices than had ever been known. Practically every tire company advanced their prices in January. Kent Kords had never been sold on this coast before.

So that the public could learn for themselves about the HIGH QUALITY of KENT KORDS, we have kept our introductory prices in effect for about two months. Ralphs retail prices are lower than jobbers' prices at the factory in carload lots for cash. We cannot replace tires for the prices we are now naming. We have FOUR carloads due between now and the 18th of March.

OUR SALES HAVE BEEN TREMENDOUS
To Protect Ourselves We Will
ADVANCE PRICES MARCH 18, 1923.

If we do not have your size in stock, we will protect all PAID ORDERS given us up to and including March 17, 1923. C. O. D. orders will not be protected.

APOSTASY CHAPTER SUBJECT OF REV. BROOKS

The "Apostasy Chapter" was the subject of discussion at the men's Bible class of the Presbyterian church at the city hall Sunday morning, when Keith L. Brooks gave an exposition of 2 Thess. 2. Mr. Brooks said in part:

"We have here a definite prophecy concerning conditions that will exist in the churches of Christendom during the closing days of the present age.r

"'Let no man deceive you,' says the apostle, 'the day of the Lord will not be until the world has witnessed the great falling away from the faith and the rise of the man of sin.' There are some preachers today who scout the idea of there being an apostasy or a judgment. Thye continue to talk of the new world order and the glorious culmination of the evolution of man, while at the same time denying the great fundamentals of Christianity. Aren't we better educated? Aren't we more scientific? Haven't we wonderful inventions? Haven't we great institutions? Yes, but as Isaiah says in his prophecy, 'Truth is fallen in the street.'

"The chapter describes a world-wide weakening of the churches. The word translated 'falling away' means 'a revolt.' This is the only word that could describe conditions in Christendom today. The unbelief of infidels on the outside is not apostasy. Their opposition to the Gospel is always to be expected. But we have here an open rebellion on the part of leaders in the churches themselves. It is to culminate in the appearance of anti-christ, who is to be a superman.

"The devil's word in the beginning was 'ye shall be as gods' and for over 6000 years men have been striving to become as gods. Man exalted to the place of God is egotism full blown, but when that day comes, something is going to happen. The Holy Spirit and the true body of Christ in the world, the restraining force in the world, will be withdrawn, for Christ is coming for His true people. For a brief time the superman and his host of followers will be without restraint. The world will be saying—at last a scholarship that is unassailable, a science that is enduring, a power that is marvelous. But there will be a sudden disillusionment.

"The apostle exhorts us in these days to 'stand fast' and to 'hold fast' to the truth of the word of God. 'Come out of her, my people, that ye be not partakers of her sins and that ye receive not of her plagues. For her sins have reached unto heaven and God hath remembered her iniquities. Therefore shall her plagues come in one day, death and mourning and famine, and she shall be utterly burned with fire, for strong is the Lord God who judgeth her.'"

DR. FAREED, AT THE TEMPLE, ASKS OF "TRUTH"

On Sunday at the temple, Dr. Fareed opened his discussion on "Psychology of Truth" by reading the first five verses of the Gospel of St. John, and the beatitudes in the fifth chapter of Matthew.

After pointing out that the word "truth" may be substituted for "Word" in the first chapter of St. John, he showed that throughout the ages, mankind has been seeking the answer to the question. Pilate asked of Jesus, in St. John xviii, 38: "What is truth?"

Scientists in their laboratories, searching out the truths of physics and chemistry, and knowing that the senses often give delusive results, apply tests to prove whether their findings will work.

He showed that so must religious truths be tested out. Love, harmony, peace and good will must be translated into daily actions. Knowledge of these truths is valuable to us only in so far as it chemicalizes the baser parts of our natures, and lifts us out of ourselves into the Universal Love which was the keynote of all the Master's teaching. Attention was called to the fact that all down through history, men have fought and died and have killed and persecuted their fellowmen in the belief that they were defending the Truth, which needs no defense, but needs only to be lived. He said in conclusion that each one of us has a right to his own view of the truth, but not a right to force his view of the truth on some one else, or even to think less of him because he differs.

SEIGE OF JERUSALEM IS THE TEXT OF REDEEMER

A good number of Lutherans were present at the services of the Redeemer Evangelical Lutheran church held at Isabel and California. Rev. H. O. Klingel occupied the pulpit and preached on the theme taken from St. Luke 19, 41-48: "The Siege of Jerusalem."

He said in part: "One of the most remarkable features of our gospel is the minute exactness with which Christ foretells the destruction of the city of Jerusalem. Standing before the massive walls of that seemingly impregnable city, He utters the solemn prophecy concerning the destruction of Jerusalem. This prophecy of the Lord came true, every word of it. About forty years after this remarkable prediction the Roman army, some 60,000 warriors, and comanded by Titus, encompassed the city. It was in the spring time of the year, and about one million Jews were huddled together within the walls. Before the city was entirely circled, before the belt of grim warriors around the city was closed, the Christians, remembering their Savior's dreadful prediction, left Jerusalem in a body and found a safe refuge at Pella, a mountain resort beyond the river Jordan. The siege lasted from the month of April to the 10th of August. The terrible agony and suffering, the distress of the inhabitants of the doomed city is beyond description. Josephus, a Jewish writer, states, 'The whole place was so thoroughly levelled and dug up that no one visiting it would believe that it ever had been inhabited.'

"Still," the speaker continued, "there is something more remarkable than this foretelling of the siege of Jerusalem. It is Christ's fervent and sacred love to the blinded people that despised and rejected their own Messiah. We read in the text that Christ wept over the city of Jerusalem.

"Oh, what love, what fervent love to His people dwells in the heart of Him who is shedding these tears. These were not tears of anger. His tears were tears of extreme sorrow; sorrow, because as He says, 'they did not know the things which belonged to their peace and because they were hid from their eyes.' We cannot understand such fervent love. However, we know that Christ wants to turn them from their wickedness and induce them to seek the Lord their God. All men can be saved through repentance and faith in Jesus Christ. A man in order to be justified in the sight of God, must have the assurance that his transgressions are put away. This assurance he can have alone through faith in Jesus Christ, in whom alone is the remission of sins. St. John tells us in his first letter, chapter 1, verse 7: 'The Blood of Jesus Christ, His Son, cleanseth us from all sin.'"

"GIVE CAESAR" IS EDMONDS' THEME

At the Presbyterian church Sunday morning, Rev. W. E. Edmonds preached on "The Income Tax," from the text (as worded in the Moffatt translation), "Give Caesar what belongs to Caesar; give to God what belongs to God." (Matt. 22:21). A resume follows:

"The Shepherd youth David, going down with supplies to his brothers where the great braggart Goliath was paralyzing Israel's army with his defiance of God and man, saw the situation. Resolving to meet the emergency, he said: 'Is there not a cause?'

"'Is there not a cause in our day? There is a cause that is Caesar's. When Caesar's tax collector reached Jesus one of the disciples was bidden to go procure the coin to pay the tax (though a miracle was needed to supply the coin). Jesus recognized what was Caesar's; He recognized human governments. There is a cause of authority against license, the constitution against anarchy, of justice against injustice. We have often to hang our heads in shame for wrong. Not those who openly scoff at government are the greatest menace, but those in luxury who use their wealth and position in flouting at authority and right.

"The other side is true: render unto God what belongs to God. We, in this country, mostly do well as to Caesar's due; we have the machinery to attend to those things. But, will a man rob God? The law says, your living in a community makes you responsible in duties to that community. The same argument that is true concerning what is Caesar's is true as to which is God's. You have got to support God. Since the church belongs to God, since it does the work for the soul, since it alone supplies to youth the Bible that the state prohibits in the schools—you must.

"But God helps to make things easy about it. 'Here is this dollar; a tenth out of that belongs to me, that is no gift. Out of the remainder lay out your gift.' But supposing all the things that can happen to you, God says, 'You don't have to give Me anything.' If you have not been prospered, then obligation does not lie upon you.

"This matter of giving is of grace. Back in the time of the poor Jewisfh exiles in Babylon, they garnered their little bits to rebuild the destroyed temple—not that God needed it but they needed Him. So they sent their gold to Jerusalem. It was melted and made into crowns—crowns in memoriam of what they had done. God will take our bits and we will find our crowns with our names on them."

One day small Freddie was called upon at school to explain the difference between climate and weather.

"Climate," answered the little chap, "is what we have with us all the time, but weather only lasts a few days."

Cold sermons have spoiled many a warm Sunday dinner.

NOTICE OF STREET WORK

Public notice is hereby given that the Council of the City of Glendale, on the 19th day of February, 1923, did, at its meeting on said day, adopt Resolution of Intention No. 1919, declaring as follows:

SECTION 1. That the public interest and convenience require and it is the intention of the Council of the City of Glendale to order the following work and improvement to be done, to-wit:

First: That

ALLEY, KENWOOD STREET, east of Louise Street from the southerly line of Broadway to the northerly line of Harvard Street except those portions which are already graded to the official line and grade, be graded to the official grade heretofore established therefor, the same to be done in accordance with Plan No. 624, Profile No. 346, and Specifications for said work adopted by the Council of the City of Glendale and known as Specifications No. 36.

Second: That the first alley east of Louise Street from the southerly line of Broadway to the northerly line of Harvard Street, be paved with an oil macadam pavement three (3) inches in thickness in accordance with Plan No. 624, Profile No. 346, and Specifications for said work adopted by the Council of the City of Glendale and known as Specifications No. 36.

Third: That a four (4) inch Class "B" cast iron water pipe be laid in Kenwood Street, Harvard street and in Broadway, and across all intersecting and terminating streets and alleys along a line seventeen (17) feet easterly of and parallel to the westerly line of Kenwood Street and its northerly and southerly extension, said pipe to extend from a line seventeen (17) feet southerly from and parallel to the northerly line of Broadway and its easterly extension to a line twenty-one (21) feet northerly of and parallel to the southerly line of Harvard Street and its easterly extension; together with all connections, valves, fire hyrants and appurtenances, all as shown on Plan No. 624, and Profile No. 175, and said pipe and appurtenances to be used for fire protection and the distribution of the municipal water supply of the City of Glendale. Said pipe shall be laid in accordance with said plan and profile and between the points on the lines and grades, and at the elevations designated thereon. That said pipe, connections and appurtenances shall be constructed in accordance with the plans and profile therefor designated as Plan No. 624, Plan No. 439, Plan No. 448, Profile No. 175, and in accordance with Specifications for said work adopted by the Council of the City of Glendale and known as Specifications No. 42 for furnishing and laying cast iron water pipe in the City of Glendale, and that galvanized iron service pipes of the sizes and at the locations shown on Plan No. 624, be laid in Kenwood Street from said pipe line above described to a line drawn parallel to and approximately twelve (12) inches easterly of the easterly curb line of Kenwood Street, and to a line drawn parallel to and approximately twelve (12) inches westerly of the westerly curb line of Kenwood Street. Said service pipes shall be laid in further accordance with said Specifications No. 42.

Fourth: That a two (2) inch galvanized, standard, welded screw pipe be laid in Harvard Street and across all intersecting and terminating streets and alleys along a line twenty-one (21) feet northerly of and parallel to the southerly line of Harvard Street and its westerly and easterly extensions. Said pipe to extend from a line ten (10) feet westerly of and parallel to the easterly line, and its northerly extension, of the first alley west of Kenwood Street and lying between Harvard Street and Colorado Street to a line seventeen (17) feet easterly of and parallel to the westerly line of Kenwood Street and its southerly extension, together with all connections, valves and appurtenances, all as shown on Plan No. 624, Profile No. 150, and said pipe and appurtenances to be used for fire protection and the distribution of the municipal water supply of the City of Glendale. Said pipe shall be laid in accordance with said plan and profile between the points on the lines and grades and at the elevations designated thereon. That said pipe, connections, valves and appurtenances shall be constructed in accordance with the plans and profile therefor designated as Plan No. 624, Plan No. 439, Profile No. 150, and in accordance with Specifications therefor adopted by the Council of the City of Glendale and known as Specifications No. 51 for furnishing and laying galvanized, standard, welded screw pipe in the City of Glendale.

SECTION 2. That pursuant to the Act of the Legislature of the State of California, approved February 27, 1893, and the Acts amendatory thereto, serial bonds bearing interest at the rate of seven (7) per cent per annum shall be issued to represent assessments of Twenty-five ($25.00) Dollars or over for the costs of said work or improvements; said serial bonds shall extend over a period ending nine (9) years from and after the second day of January next succeeding the date of said bonds, and an even annual proportion of the principal sum thereof shall be payable by coupon on the second day of January, every year after their date, until the whole is paid; and the interest shall be payable semi-annually by coupon on the second days of January and July, respectively, of each year, at the rate of seven (7) per cent per annum on all sums unpaid, until the whole of said principal and interest is paid.

SECTION 3. The City Engineer is directed to make a diagram of the property affected or benefited by the proposed work or improvement as described herein and to be assessed to pay the cost and expenses thereof. Such diagram shall show each separate lot, piece or parcel of land, the area in square feet of each of such lots, pieces or parcels of land, and the relative location of the same to the work proposed to be done, all within the limits of the assessment district.

SECTION 4. All Maps, Cross-sections, Plans and Profiles referred to herein are on file in the office of the City Engineer of said City. All Specifications referred to herein are on file in the office of the City Clerk of said city. Said Maps, Plans, Cross-sections, Profiles and Specifications are hereby referred to for a more particular description of said work, and made a part hereof.

The district to be assessed to pay the costs and expenses of said work and improvement is described in Resolution of Intention No. 1819, to which said Resolution of Intention reference is hereby made for further particulars of said work.

ROBT. M. HOPKINS AT CHRISTIAN CHURCH

Head of National Council on Religious Education for Christian Churches Is Here

By O. L. KILBORN

There was quite a distinguished visitor at Central Christian church yesterday morning and he consented to preach to the congregation, at Rev. Cole's earnest request. This was Robert M. Hopkins, of St. Louis, one of the secretaries of the United Christian Missionary society, and head of the national Council on Religious Education for the Christian churches. He was chairman of the national convention of Sunday School Workers' (Interdenominational) held last year in Kansas City.

Though he did not announce a subject for his sermon, it could readily be noted that the thought, all through, revolved about the words, "But if not."

As an introduction the speaker referred briefly to Rev. Cole's graceful presentation of him to the congregation, expressing his pleasure at being again with one whom he had fellowshiped with in the past so agreeably and who had done such an outstanding work in St. Louis. He also spoke of his friendship with Edgar Lloyd Smith of Glendale, state secretary of Sunday school work in California, and highly commended his work.

As a basis for his sermon, Rev. Hopkins read a portion of the third chapter of Daniel, the story of Shadrach, Meshach and Abednego, Hebrew young men who were captives in Babylon and who had been summoned before King Nebuchadnezzar for refusing to bow down to and worship the golden image he had set up. Their dauntless defiance to the dreaded tyrant who had the power of life and death over them has rung down the ages: "Our God, whom we worship, and whom we serve, is able to deliver us from the burning, fiery furnace, but if not, be it known unto thee, O king, that we will not bow down before thy golden image nor worship it."

"Astounding declaration for three helpless captives, men of a despised race, to hurl at the mightiest king in the world, yet they hesitated not one moment," said the speaker. "Not because they hoped to gain anything by such an answer, but because it was right. Honesty may be the best policy, according to the old proverb, but the man who is honest from policy only would very likely be dishonest if policy dictated such a course. We should be honest because it is right.

"Truth is the secret of enduring power, for nothing that is false can endure. The path of duty, if followed to the end, leads to glory beyond the grave. The beautiful young Armenian girl who braved death and dishonor from brutal Turkish soldiers rather than deny her Christ, is an example to us all.

"The Christian home is a mighty influence for good in this world and its decadence means a backset for Christianity.

"We all know that our God can deliver us from any danger, but 'if not'—that is, if it is His divine will that we drink the cup of suffering, we should be faithful to the end, anyhow, and fearlessly hurl defiance at the forces of evil."

At the evening service Rev. Cole preached the third sermon on "Our Homes and Folks." This one dealt with the virtues and faults of young men as pointed out by 20 or more young ladies in anonymous communications to the pastor. The boys came off fairly well but there were a few very biting comments on their bad habits, the most severe being that from a young lady who declared that no man who smoked cigarettes could walk down the street with her, for if he thought more of his weed than of her, she wanted none of him.

PASSPORTS TO CALIFORNIA URGED

LOS ANGELES, March 5 (A. P.).—A system of passports in effect between states would stem the tide of idlers and potential criminals which each winter tax the resources and ingenuity of the police of Los Angeles and other California cities, according to Captain of Detectives George K. Home.

"Ninety per cent of our floaters—potential criminals—are youths under twenty-five," said Captain Home, "boys from farms, from respectable homes, who start out to see the world, traveling by the side-door Pullman route. Nomads, nondescripts, their appearance keeps them out of the residential districts and they stay downtown, where they gradually drift among the criminal chaff—not because they are vicious, but because they must eat and are unqualified to support themselves.

"With a sort of passport system in effect between states, we could keep these boys at home, denying them passports until employment is assured in the city to which they wish to move."

PRETTY DANCE IS GIVEN SATURDAY

The dance given by Dorothy Marie Houston and Evelyn Esther Hunt Saturday evening at the Pearl Keller Studio on North Brand, proved an exceedingly pretty party. The walls were decorated with red, white and blue balloons, and the stage from which the Marion Jones Orchestra dispensed music was transposed into a sitting room. Yellow acacia, mustard and cinneraria were used in decoration and there were several favor dances, with colonial caps for the boys, fans and bead bracelets for the girls, the party ending with a balloon and serpentine dance. About one hundred friends of the young hostesses were entertained. Mesdames C. W. Houston and C. W. Hunt were chaperones, assisted by Mrs. Haowrd Walker and some of the other mothers who were present.

MAC ASHANS SELL HOME FOR PARSONAGE

Mr. and Mrs. David MacAshan, who recently sold their home at 706 East Harvard to the Broadway M. E. South congregation for a parsonage, will move into their new home, nearing completion on Stocker street, soon.

Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Ford and family of 614 North Brand boulevard are moving today to Tujunga where they will make their home temporarily for six months.

Miss Edith Lindsay and her mother, Mrs. M. Lindsay, and Jane Gay and Morton Davis were guests of Mrs. Irene Castle at tea at the Ambassador on Wednesday.

LA CRESCENTA NOTES

The regular meeting of the Missionary society of the Community church was held at the church last Friday with Mrs. H. A. Kelso presiding. The officers installed for the coming year were: Miss Gertrude Bickel, president; Mrs. W. McClellan, vice president; Mrs. A. Burt, secretary and treasurer.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Carpenter of 138 East Mayfield avenue were hosts to a group of relatives at dinner Sunday, this day being the birthday anniversary of Mrs. Carpenter. Their guests included Mr. and Mrs. B. R. Carpenter and Mr. and Mrs. F. T. Carpenter and family of Los Angeles.

The members of the La-Mo-Ver Bridge club motored to La Canada last Friday evening, where they were entertained at dinner and bridge at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Richard Dewey.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Smithies left last Saturday for Panama, where Mr. Smithies has accepted a government position. Mr. Smithies was formerly assistant superintendent of the Crescenta Mutual Water Co.

Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Brown and children of Glendale were dinner gusts of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Brown of Los Angeles avenue, last Saturday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Ohrmund and children of Pasadena visited H. A. Baldridge over Sunday.

Mrs. Lucy Brown of Seattle, Wash., was a guest of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Culberson Sunday.

LEWIS STONE IS IN FEATURED ROLE AT T. D. & L.

Lewis Stone, one of the best known stage and screen actors in the profession, has been engaged as a regular member of the Paramount stock company and will play leads in special Paramount features.

His first appearance under the new arrangement is as leading man in William de Mille's production, "The World's Applause," in which he is featured opposite Bebe Daniels, who plays the feminine lead—probably the strongest role of her career. The picture will be shown at the T. D. & L. theatre tonight.

Mr. Stone has to his credit excellent roles in such pictures as "The River's End," "Milestones," "Held by the Enemy" (a Paramount picture), and many others. He has had the opportunity on many occasions of becoming a star in his own right, but seems to have preferred working as a free lance player. However, Paramount has signed him on a long term contract to play leading parts.

BRITISH TO MARK ARMISTICE DAY

LONDON, March 5 (A. P.).—The king has approved that permanent instructions be issued to the army regarding the observance of Armistice Day. The following new paragraph will be added to the regulations: "Each year on the morning of Armistice Day, November 11, at 11 o'clock, all troops will stand at attention for two minutes, and all guards will turn out and present arms."

It was the dear old lady's first ride in a taxi and she watched, with growing alarm the driver continually putting his hand outside the car as a signal to the following traffic. At last she became exasperated.

"Young man," she said, "you look after that car of yours and watch where you are going; I'll tell you when it starts raining."

EDITORIALS By the PEOPLE

SECOND SPECIES

Species produceth only their own kind and never any other. Gen. 1-24. And God said, "Let the earth bring forth living creatures, after their kind, cattle, beasts, creeping things, birds, and everything that creepeth upon the ground, after its kind, and fishes and whales, everything after its kind, whose seed is in itself."

No other case has ever been found. So the theory of evolution is never anything but a false guess, with no basis of facts on which to rest. All the facts and realities are against it. Then they try to prove and explain one guess, by making another, just as false and even worse than the first.

Herbert Spencer, the champion, arch apostle and high priest of evolution, so admitted, even by Darwin, was born at Derby, England, 1820. He was from devout religious parents, both at first Methodists. Later his father went to the Quakers. This led to a controversy as to the son. It was settled by an agreement that Herbert should go with his mother, to the Methodists, one service, and with his father to the Quakers the other.

This gave the son the teachings of both sects. These both taught conversion and also full salvation. The son was educated by his father, a teacher of mathematics, and his mother, and also by his uncle, a minister of the Church of England. They all designed him to become a minister. But instead he became an engineer and a prolific writer for 45 years.

He abandoned the God and the religion of his parents and teachers and became an evolutionist. In 1862 he produced his first work, "First Principles." In this, at Page 162, in a foot note, he gives us his attitude and the bottom idea of his scheme, to get rid of the thought of a personal God, and to put in His place an abstraction at the head of the universe. This he calls "Persistence of Force."

He says, "Some two years ago (1861) I expressed to my friend, Thomas Huxley, my dissatisfaction with the then current expression, "conservation of forces," assigning as my reason, first, that the word conservation implies a conserver and an act of conservation, and second, that it does not imply the existence of the force, before the particular manifestation of it which is contemplated, and now I may add as a further fault, the tacit assumption, that without some act of conservation, force would disappear. All these implications are at variance with the conception to be conveyed. In place of conservation, Prof. H. suggested "Persistence." This meets most of the objections, and though it may be urged against it, that it does not directly imply pre existence of the force at any time manifestated, yet no other word less faulty in this respect can be found. In the absence of a word specially coined for the purpose, it seems the best, and as such I adopt it."

Again on page 167, he says, "Force as it exists out of our consciousness is not force as we know it. Hence the force of which we assert 'persistence' is that absolute force, of which we are indefinitely conscious, as the correlate of the force we know." By "persistence of force," we really mean the persistence of some cause which transcends our knowledge and conception. In asserting it we assert an unconditional reality without beginning or end." "The sole truth which transcends experience by underlying it, is thus the "persistence of force." This being the basis of experience must be the basis of any scientific organization of experiences. To this an ultimate analysis brings us down, and on this a rational synthesis must build up."

How hard he tries to get rid of a personal spirit, a God, and to put in his place at the head of the universe an impersonal abstraction.

Now put with this his definition of evolution, already cited from page 343, and then add from his summary and conclusion, on page 467, "We passed to certain primary truths"—"The indestructibility of matter, the continuity of motion, and the persistence of force of which the last is ultimate, and the others derivates."—"This we discovered is the truth from which, by derivation, all other truths are proved." These give the gist of the theory of evolution.

Truths in Epigram

Condemn the fault but not the actor. — Shakespeare.

We get no good by being ungenerous even to a book.—Elizabeth Browning.

Whatever strengthens our local attachments is favorable both to individual and national character.—Southey.

WONDERS OF THE GREAT SPACES

All the world is interested in the astronomical accounts of the fortunes of Beta Cita, a star recently observed to flame with redoubled intensity. The first report concerning the phenomenon was sent out upon the purported authority of Flammarion, and it is fair to assert, that without other backing, would not have been acceptable to an intelligent laiety. Not that Flammarion is not a great scientist, for he is. His name, however, has been coupled with a pseudo product half science and half fiction. Where one equation began and the other ended was something not to be determined with accuracy, save by his peers. The report in this instance was quickly confirmed.

There seems abundant occasion to marvel, but nothing about which to get excited. The causation of the luminous outbreak may remain a mystery. Whether it was a collision, a pelting of meteoric matter, or the mere influence of gravity operating between Beta Cita and some other body swept into juxtaposition, must remain for the present mere conjecture. Whatever happened, happened long ago. The scientist just now is observing an activity that perhaps centuries ago stirred the deeps of space with turmoil unspeakable. He is looking at a reality of the past, but only as a dream of the present. One authority states that the upheaval may have been three or four centuries ago, and the light flashed as signal, traveling 11,000,000 miles a minute, has just come within mundane cognizance. It conveys nothing of what is, telling only the story of what had been.

It is not deemed impossible that celestial bodies do meet and vanish, their fragments dissipated and lost. There are floating particles that are not to be accounted for otherwise. The flaming meteor must have a source. As it describes a blazing arc across the night skies, an object of startling and sometimes awesome beauty, the observer wonders whence it came. Pieces of considerable weight have been known to strike the earth. The theory is that they are not luminous until fired by the friction of the atmosphere, when as a rule they reach a degree of heat that utterly consumes them, leaving nothing to complete the descent.

The globe on which humanity has dwelt now for a long time seems reasonably stable. At least if it felt any ill effects from the tumult through which a distant star passed long ago, it has recovered.

PERHAPS UNDULY ALARMED

There is much encouragement in the optimistic attitude of Lord Curzon. He declines to accept the theory that Europe is going to war and then to smash. He is proceeding on the belief that order is to be restored and normal relations resumed between nations.

Doubtless there are plenty of people in Europe in a fighting mood, but it does not appear that they are able to do much save gnash their teeth and make idle fistic gestures. Ludendorff is an example. He was going about preaching war, and the common folk chased him across the county line. However, the cause represented by him is wholly without merit. The Germans want much that they have not, but only a faction numerically, and otherwise, contemptible, wants a king.

Germany might be willing to fight France. From the German angle the provocation must be regarded as more than ample. But Germany has not the means with which to fight. Turkey has made many demands, and at the crucial moment, has backed down as to each of them. The opinion prevails now that backing down is the one certainty to be expected of Turkey. Of course, Russia, big and blustering, is always making threatening sounds. It is impossible to figure out how a regime that has been an utter failure could undertake so great an enterprise as a foreign war, or how, undertaking it, there could be any result but disaster heaped on the present accumulation of disasters marking the soviet career.

It may be that Europe, reduced by hunger to a vast rabble owing allegiance only to its empty stomachs will be brought to lower estate than modern civilization ever has known. But as to organized war, nation against nation, the prospect seems to become more remote.

It is true that the vote of the people was the direct cause of defeating the League of Nations, so far as concerned participation of the United States. Nevertheless, there has been small evidence that they voted with this purpose in mind. The defeat was merely incidental to the desire for a change in administration. In view of these facts, there is considerable nonsense in the allegation that the President is trying to drag the country into the league by the back door, and the assertion that the war of 1920 must be fought all over again, is a mere partisan noise.

Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrant of California is enjoying the full privileges of high office and of citizenship. Acting as attorney general, in the absence of Mr. Daugherty, she has been fined $10 for speeding. Equality has arrived.

The superior court complains of being overworked, but it does not seem to look with favor on the small claims court, designed to lighten its burden of labor. Every obstacle is being placed in the way of the new tribunal, and the intention to put it out of business, if possible, is manifest.

In the small fights that have taken place between Poles and Lithuanians, it appears that the latter have been under command of German officers.

HARD LIFE IN MAINE

Take a brief glance at Maine. This winter some of its coast cities have been so cut off by snow and bitter cold that there was no communication from inland. Highways and railways alike were under the drifts and out of business. The people began to suffer both for food and fuel. Government vessels at last broke through, landing supplies. One accustomed to the climatic conditions of southern California has difficulty in visualizing such conditions as prevailed in Maine. It becomes at the same time a pleasure and a duty, and good business, too, to let the people of Maine learn the truth. Reliable advertising is a good beginning. To be attractive, advertising has to set forth nothing but the facts. It is on facts this region asks to be judged.

Many have come to southern California this winter. Millionaires, smaller capitalists, tourists with no purpose but diversion, and many in search of homes and investments. Some of the visitors are from Maine. One such was observed the other day looking at illustrations of government craft fighting their way to the ice-bound wharves of cities in his state. He looked about him at the verdure and sunshine, and said that he had not come with the intention of staying, but had changed his mind, and would stay.

The mere fact that individuals with money enough to go whither they please, elect to pass the winter in California, is the finest sort of advertisement. By the casual visitors who have found the delight of living here, the word will be disseminated in the old home. It will reach Maine and be effective there.

The supreme court has decided that a Hindu may not become a citizen of the United States. In an individual case this may seem to work a hardship, but the Hindu in general possesses characteristics that lend themselves imperfectly to the purposes of American citizenship.

A BOOK TO LOVE

By DR. FRANK CRANE

There are some books we read for information, some for diversion, and some to say that we have read them.

Dr. Frank Crane

But occasionally comes along a book that gets into our hearts. Such a one is the book W. H. Hudson wrote before he died, "A Hind in Richmond Park."

It is nothing but an account of what he thought upon seeing a deer in a park. That is all.

But that is enough. For beginning with this fountain the stream wanders on through the pages of rich experience, whimsical observation, questioning philosophy, and hearty feeling till it waters the whole landscape of the reader's nature.

I like to commend this kind of a book because it is real, it is healthy, it is as wholesome as a garden or as a pine wood.

It is not about any particular subject. I doubt if books ever ought to be written upon some given theme. How much life we sacrifice to system and how often thought has its head and feet lopped off to fit the bed of logic!

Of course Hudson, being a naturalist, has most to say of animals and plants and all naked life. In all the book there is no suggestion of clothes.

It is very difficult to quote from this book because any quotation will be taken as a sample of the whole. But the totality of Hudson cannot be sampled any more than a little piece of wood can be sampled of the majesty of the forest. But here, for instance, is a striking thing he says about how we lose our sense of smell:

"It is a common idea, and is in the books, that man's sense of smell has decayed; some writers have gone so far as to describe it as obolescent. It would be nearer the truth to say that the more civilized man becomes, the more he secures himself against the forces of nature by improving his conditions, the less important to his welfare does this sense become. The dangers he is warned against by smell in a state of nature have been removed artificially; in an environment in which the function of the olfactories has been superseded, the inevitable result is their decay. This is in accordance with nature's economical principles; she will not continue to do for us what we have undertaken to do for ourselves, and will cheerfully scrap the exquisite apparatus she has been building up for our safety in thousands and millions of years."

To those whom thought is not pain, but a delightful exercise and as interesting as golf, to those for whom the mind is a beloved kingdom and not an annoyance, to those who love thoughts as they love pets and for whom reflection is a chosen delight, this volume will be a treasure.

Hudson's was an amazingly rich and fecund nature. We can never be too grateful that he turned to literature and endowed the world with some of the beauty of his mind.

THE RIGHT WORD

By W. CURTIS NICHOLSON

A GRAVE ERROR

James R. Keiser contributes a few excerpts and points out common errors.

"Murders by American Politicians"

It is the first time American politicians have been accused of murder. Read the excerpt Mr. Keiser submits: "But political significance has been attached to the murders by American politicians and Mexican exiles in this country who are at odds with Carranza." The correspondent suggests clearing the reputation of our politicians by making the following change: "But political significance has been attached by American politicians and Mexican exiles in this country who are at odds with Carranza to the murders."

"The Right Word" does not like the corrected sentence, and so offers the following revised version: American politicians and Mexican exiles in this country, who are at odds with Carranza, have attached political significance to the murders.

An Asset Doubly Secured

Mr. Keiser also submits the following: "Mr. Bryan who is not on their payroll, whom they have got for nothing, is the most voluble and noticeable asset they have got." And following the excerpt he suggests changing the last words to "noticeable asset they have."

When one has a thing he has it and it is unnecessary to doubly impress a reader or hearer with this fact by using the word got, which also means have. A comma should follow Mr. Bryan.

An Issue

The third excerpt submitted is as follows: "Certain faction do not enjoy as much influence as they think their due." The correspondent would change the wording to "Certain faction does not enjoy as much influence as it thinks its due."

"The Right Word" takes issue with Mr. Keiser and endorses the first of the two constructions.

THE LISTENING POST

By James W. Foley

JAMES W. FOLEY

How sad a thing it would be for the world if everybody were suddenly to become rich.

If all the gold mines and the oil wells produced as the prospectuses lead us to hope.

If all the stocks went up to par times a hundred.

* * *

If all at once everybody were placed beyond the reach of want, present and future.

If the world became merely a coupon clipping bureau.

If when we needed money we had merely to go a slice off a few coupons.

Or draw a purse full of dividends.

* * *

We say it would be a sad thing and it would be.

For if you wanted a house built and you went to your carpenter and builder he would tell you to go elsewhere.

For his oil or other stock paid him plenty to live on comfortably.

With enough for his children.

* * *

Why should he build a house for you?

For a house is builded for profit to the builder.

And if the builder has no need of profit, then why should he burden himself with the task?

Why indeed?

* * *

And when you wanted repairs for your motor the mechanic would tell you to go elsewhere.

For he was simply rolling in money.

Had enough to spare.

Why should he get himself all grease and dirt looking after your car?

Why indeed?

* * *

And the mechanic and the artisan and the farmer and all of the individuals who contribute to your health and comfort and well being would stop working.

Why not?

For why should they labor and toil when it was unnecessary?

Stocks and shares and units and the like would provide for them amply.

Everybody rich.

Nobody to do any work.

* * *

It would be a queer world.

Everybody rolling in wealth.

Nobody needing to work.

The potential spirit of labor in the world taking a perpetual vacation.

Because of too much money.

* * *

And then—

Money would go down in value.

Because it would not buy anything you want.

Coupons would have no value.

Because you could not exchange them for anything.

* * *

Providing that mere money is not value.

It is a measure of value.

Value is in human labor.

And we exchange labor, one with another.

Russia has wealth in trillions of rubles.

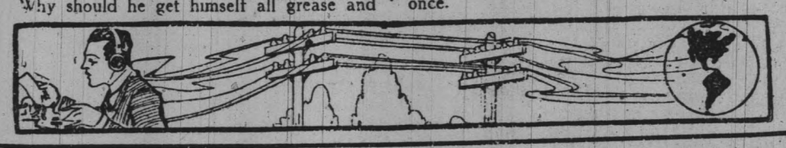
Germany in trillions of marks.

Everybody there is a trillionaire.

A millionaire in Russia or Germany could not pay gas bills.

* * *

So what a sad thing for the world it would be if everybody were to be made rich all at once.



Songs of the Poets

A March Night—By Letta U. Eulalia Thomas in McClure's

Do you know the sound and the sweep and the swirl
Of the wind through the wild March sky.
When the far stars flame and the snowflakes whirl
And the spirit of spring flits by
With a whispered word to the swaying trees
Of the heat to follow the cold,
Of the days to come, when the silver rain
Will shine on the cowslip's gold?
Do you know the feel of the wind, sweet call
When you open your heart and soul
To the thrill and lift and throb of life—
The full, strong life of the whole?

FUTURISTS---CUBISTS AND OTHER LUNATICS

By ESTELLE LAWTON LINDSEY

For the last half hour I have been torturing my rebellious eyes with some alleged art.

No wonder the young of the present day go daft and take to jazz music and weird dances, ugly as they are lascivious. Fancy going to an art exhibition and having your sight assaulted by a riot of meaningless colors, crude and revolting. I quit attending the exhibitions at some of the Los Angeles art galleries because the alleged pictures shocked and offended, not only my sense of beauty and proportion but my intelligence as well.

That hundreds of people should year after year stand for the atrocities that degenerate brush daubers hand down as art leads one in a thoughtful moment to decide that everybody is crazy.

Some years ago I learned through the public prints that the French artist Gauguin had died in Tahati of leprosy or something else equally atrocious. As I write one of his daubs lies before me, and I am telling heaven's truth when I say that it is my conviction that any man who spends his days holding such horrors in his imagination and transferring them t canvas for the confusion of future generations deserved to have something awful happen to him.

I don't know what the conglomeration means. There is an enormous black woman sitting cross legged looking at something that seems to be a cross between a piece of fruit and a black felt hat. Her knees resemble decomposed watermelons and her face is hideous, black and negroid. In the far distance back of her is something that might indifferently be a half starved dog or rat. A comment beneath the atrocity states that Gauguin hated beauty.

He must have hated the world as well, to turn loose on it such things.

But granting that Gauguin hated beauty. WHY will apparently sane people buy his nightmares and hang them? That is what stumps me.

I read in the Ladies' Home Journal that Oliver Herford says that the spirit of unrest that caused the Bolshevist movement expressed itself also in art, music, drama and poetry—notably free verse.

May not a mere lay person say to Mr. Herford that the unrest more probably comes from the torture inflicted on defenseless humanity by such "revolutionaries" as the men and women who are painting without art, writing without meaning and rhyming without rhyme?

It need not astonish us that a measurable number of people go crazy and express insanity with pigments, that another section do the same thing with words, strung together without rule or meaning; but the point that calls forth my uneasiness is that any appreciable number of men and women should be able to live through such means, in short, that the world has lunatics enough to pay for the support of the superlunatics who are ruining good pigments and all ideals that have so far guided us up from the primal ooze.

EASTERN POINT OF VIEW

HUMILIATING SITUATION

[New York Morning Telegraph]

The Atlantic coast off New Jersey and New York is blockaded. It is a hostile fleet that extends three to the mile from north to south—hostile in that the purpose of shipmasters is to aid in the violation of our laws. A majority of these ships, perhaps fly the British flag. Unless we wish to become the laughing stock of the world, we must devise some way to disband this armada of rum carriers. The wisdom, or unwisdom, of prohibition has nothing to do with it. We are a sovereign country, and if ships under foreign flags can make a business of supplying law-breakers with contraband goods just outside the three-mile limit, government is a farce.

It is not well to reflect that, while these searovers are at work, distinguished representatives of Great Britain are in Washington seeking the best terms possible for the settlement of a four-billion-dollar account. We have a secretary of state, who, is, in effect, foreign minister. Suppose he should inform the delegation that we could not deal with Great Britain on any basis looking to debt adjustment until Great Britain brought under control West Indian ports and admonished her shipmasters. Does anybody doubt that Great Britain would find a way to divert this part of her merchant marine to more legitimate channels?

The Morning Telegraph is not in sympathy with sumptuary legislation, but it shares with all good citizens the humiliation of the present situation.

COMMENT ON DAY'S NEWS

By HENRY JAMES

There seems good authority for the belief that deaths have been caused in this community by the bites of rabid dogs. The existence of hydrophobia often has been scouted, but it does not seem probable that men of science have been befooled into thinking they were attending a case of it, if they were not.

HENRY JAMES

Ordinarily the bite of a dog is no more or less harmful than any other puncture of equal magnitude. There seem to be exceptions. When a child or an adult is bitten by a dog, and thereafter dies in agony, it matters little what the malady be termed. It has all the torture attributed to rabies.

Not merely as a precaution, but in justice to the creatures themselves, superfluous dogs should be removed. Homeless canine wanderers at best do not have a happy time. They are hungry and thirsty, and often tormented by cruel children. When one of them bites, great harm may be caused even though no infection be conveyed.

People who own and cherish dogs of course do not need to be counselled to take good care of them.

The domesticity of a community is not to be judged by the relative number of marriage licenses issued and divorces sought.

Marriage is a local activity. As a rule it involves two residents in some manner identified with community life.

The divorce is different. Often the raw material for it is imported, and neither of the principals has lived in the place where their domestic fight is staged, for more than barely the essential legal period.

WATCHING THE PARADE

BY JOHN DILGRIM

It is years since I have thought of the Young Duke. I might have gone down to my grave without thinking of him, if it had not been for Herbert Hoover. The secretary of commerce got to talking the other day of the qualifications he asks in a young man he hires.

"He must be honest and forceful—and all that," said the secretary, running through a list of the more obvious virtues. "And he must be able to get along with men."

The Young Duke, poor devil, had all the virtues, but he could not get along with men. No use saying that we were prejudiced against him because he was an Englishman. We were, perhaps, but other Englishmen were our warmest buddies. He was the son of a curate and had the snobbiness one often finds in that sort of son. He knew more—had more real knowledge—than any one in our company. His knowledge was get-at-able, too. When called on he could recite facts that stood up under the acid.

But he was the poorest paid man on the job. No one liked him. He averaged about four hard fights a year. Things happened to him that never happened to any one else.

Finally he gave it up and moved on. The place for the Young Duke is on a desert island, where he cannot get any one's goat but his own. Yet I have never known his superior in the matter of true, old, crusted virtue. He was honest. That had been tested a score of times. He did his part and a little more on every job. He had a bookish knowledge that we all lacked and a natural intelligence that most of us had never been given. He was generous, too. But most of the men spoke of him thus:

"The Young Duke! Huh! That descriptive adjective!"

He just did not know how to get along with men, and the probabilities are that he never learned.

One reason why is that he was so profoundly impressed by his own superiority. He would never stoop to learn.

Chapter XII—Continued

When depression falls upon a man of usually even temperament it descends with a double weight. The mercurial nature has a hundred counterbalancing devices to rid itself of gloom—a sudden lifting of spirit, a memory of other moods lived through, other blacknesses dispersed by time; but the man of level nature has none of these. Depression, when it comes, is indeed depression; no phase of mind to be superseded by another phase, but a slackening of all the chords of life.

It was through such a depression as this that he labored during three weeks, while no summons and no hint of remembrance came from Chilcote. His position was peculiarly difficult. He found no action in the present, and towards the future he dared not trust himself to look. He had slipped the old moorings that familiarity had rendered endurable; but having slipped them, he had found no substitute. Such was his case on the last night of the three weeks, and such his frame of mind as he crossed Fleet Street from Clifford's Inn to Middle Temple Lane.

It was scarcely seven o'clock, but already the dusk was falling; the greater press of vehicles had ceased, and the light of the street lamps gleamed back from the spaces of dry and polished roadway, worn smooth as a mirror by wheels and hoofs. Something of the solitude of night that sits so ill on the strenuous city street was making itself felt, though the throngs of people on the pathway stil streamed eastward and westward and the taverns made a busy trade.

Having crossed the roadway, Loder paused for a moment to survey the scene. But humanity in the abstract made small appeal to him, and his glance wandered from the passers-by to the buildings massed like clouds against the dark sky. As his gaze moved slowly from one to the other a clock near at hand struck seven, and an instant later the chorus was taken up by a dozen clamorous tongues. Usually he scarcely heard, and never heeded, these innumerable chimes; but this evening their effect was strange. Coming out of the darkness, they seemed to possess a personal note, a human declaration. The impression was fantastic, but it was strong; with a species of revolt against life and his own personality, he turned slowly and moved forward in the direction of Ludgate Hill.

For a space he continued his course, then, reaching Bouverie Street, he turned sharply to the right and made his way down the slight incline that leads to the Embankment. There he paused and drew a long breath. The sense of space and darkness soothed him. Pulling his cap over his eyes, he crossed to the river and walked on in the direction of Westminster Bridge.

As he walked the great mass of water by his side looked dense and smooth as oil with its sweeping width and network of reflected light. On its farther bank rose the tall buildings, the chimneys, the flaring lights that suggest another and an alien London; close at hand stretched the solid stone parapet, giving assurance of protection.

All these things he saw with his mental eyes, but with his mental eyes only, for his physical gaze was fixed ahead where the Houses of Parliament loomed out of the dusk. From the great building his eyes never wavered until the Embankment was traversed and Westminster Bridge reached. Then he paused, resting his arms on the coping of the bridge.

In the tense quietude of the darkness the place looked vast and inspiring. The shadowy Terrace, the silent river, the rows of lighted windows, each was significant. Slowly and comprehensively his glance passed from one to the other. He was no sentimentalist and no dreamer; his act was simply the act of a man whose interests, robbed of their natural outlet, turn instinctively towards the forms and symbols of the work that is denied them. His scrutiny was steady—even cold. He was raised to no exaltation by the vastness of the building, nor was he chilled by any dwarfing of himself. He looked at it long and thoughtfully; then, again moving slowly, he turned and retraced his steps.

His mind was full as he walked back, still oblivious of the stone parapet of the Embankment, the bare trees, and the flaring lights of the advertisements across the water. Turning to the left, he regained Fleet Street and made for his own habitation with the quiet accuracy that some men exhibit in moments of absorption.

He crossed Clifford's Inn with the same slow, almost listless step; then, as his own doorway came into view, he stopped. Some one was standing in its recess.

For a moment he wondered if his fancy were playing him a trick; then his reason sprang to certainty with so fierce a leap that for an instant his mind recoiled. For we more often stand aghast at the strength of our own feelings than before the enormity of our neighbor's actions.

THE CHARACTERS IN THE STORY

JOHN CHILCOTE, member of the House of Commons, is the first man to hurry from his place when Parliament adjourns on a January night that is marked by the blackest fog in years and the news of border risings against the Persian government which are branded by

LAKELY, editor of St. George's, as the index of a long cherished Russian scheme growing to maturity under the lax British policy. In the dense fog Chilcote jostles a stranger and, lighting his cigarette, Chilcote is amazed to see that the other man is the exact counterpart of himself. They exchange cards, the stranger's revealing him to be

JOHN LODER. Depressed and unstrung the next morning, Chilcote seeks solace in the company of

LADY ASTRUPP, then he goes to Parliament where he makes a near spectacle of himself, despite the promptings of his party leader,

FRAIDE. Realizing that he is a hopeless slave to drug, Chilcote goes to Loder and offers to change places in life with him. Loder agrees and so successful is he that he not only becomes a strong political lieutenant of Fraide but is never suspected by the servants or Chilcote's wife,

EVE. He is recalled to his own home by Chilcote, who steps back again into his own shoes for the time being at least. Having tasted some of the wine of life, Loder is reflecting moodily.

He turned slowly and moved forward in the direction of Ludgate Hill. [Scene from "The Masquerader."]

"Is that you, Chilcote?" he said, below his breath.

At the sound of his voice the other wheeled round. "Hallo!" he said. "I thought you were the ghost of some old inhabitant. I suppose I am very unexpected?"

Loder took the hand that he extended and pressed the fingers unconsciously. The sight of this man was like the finding of an oasis at the point where the desert is sandiest, deadliest, most unbearable.

Yes, you are—unexpected," he answered.

Chilcote looked at him, then looked out into the court. "I'm done up," he said. "I'm right at the end of the tether." He laughed as he said it, but in the dim light of the hall Loder thought his face looked ill and harassed despite the flush that the excitement of the meeting had brought to it. Taking his arm, he drew him towards the stairs.

"So the rope has run out, eh?" he said, in imitation of the other's tone. But under the quiet of his manner his own nerves were throbbing with the peculiar alertness of anticipation; a sudden sense of mastery over life, that lifted him above surroundings and above persons—a sense of stature, mental and physical, from which he surveyed the world. He felt as if fate, in the moment of utter darkness, had given him a sign.

As they crossed the hall, Chilcote had drawn away and was already mounting the stairs. And as Loder followed, it came sharply to his mind that here, in the slipshod freedom of a door that was always open and stairs that were innocent of covering, lay his companion's real niche—unrecognized in outward avowal, but acknowledged by the inward, keener sense that manifests the individual.

In silence they mounted the stairs, but on the first landing Chilcote paused and looked back, surveying Loder from the superior height of two steps.

"I did very well at first," he said. "I did very well—I almost followed your example, for a week or so. I found myself on a sort of pinnacle—and I clung on. But in the last ten days I've—I've rather lapsed."

"Why?" Loder avoided looking at his face; he kept his eyes fixed determinedly on the spot where his own hand gripped the banister.

"Why?" Chilcote repeated. "Oh, the prehistoric tale—weakness stronger than strength. I'm—I'm sorry to come down on you like this, but it's the social side that bowls me over. It's the social side I can't stick."

"The social side? But I thought—"

"Don't think. I never think; it entails such a constant upsetting of principles and theories. We did arrange for business only, but one can't set up barriers. Society pushes itself everywhere nowadays—into business most of all. I don't want you for theatre-parties or dinners. But a big reception with a political flavor is different. A man has to be seen at these things; he needn't say anything or do anything, but it's bad form if he fails to show up."

Loder raised his head. "You must explain," he said, abruptly.

Chilcote started slightly at the sudden demand.

"I—I suppose I'm rather irrelevant," he said, quickly. "Fact is, there's a reception at the Bramfells' tonight. You know Blanche Bramfell—Viscountess Bramfell, sister of Lillian Astrupp." His words conveyed nothing to Loder, but he did not consider that. All explanations were irksome to him and he invariably chafed to be done with them.

"And you've got to put in an appearance—for party reasons?" Loder broke in.

Chilcote showed relief. "Yes. Old Fraide makes rather a point of it—so does Eve." He said the last words carelessly; then, as if their sound recalled something, his expression changed. A touch of satirical amusement touched his lips and he laughed.

"By-the-way, Loder," he said, "my wife was actually tolerant of me for nine or ten days after my return. I thought your representation was to be quite impersonal? I'm not jealous," he laughed. "I'm not jealous, I assure you; but the burned child shouldn't grow absent-minded."

At his tone and his laugh Loder's blood stirred; with a sudden, unexpected impulse his hand tightened on the banister, and, looking up, he caught sight of the face above him—his own face, it seemed, alight with malicious interest. At the sight a strange sensation seized him; his grip on the banister loosened, and, pushing past Chilcote, he hurriedly mounted the stairs.

Outside his own door the other overtook him.

"Loder!" he said. "Loder! I meant no harm. A man must have a laugh sometimes."

But Loder was facing the door and did not turn round.

A sudden fear shook Chilcote. "Loder!" he exclaimed again, "you wouldn't desert me? I can't go back tonight. I can't go back."

Still Loder remained immovable.

Alarmed by his silence, Chilcote stepped closer to him.

"Loder! Loder, you won't desert me?" He caught hastily at his arm.

With a quick repulsion Loder shook him off; then almost as quickly he turned round.

"What fools we all are!" he said, abruptly. "We only differ in degree. Come in, and let us change our clothes."

CHAPTER XIII.

THE best moments of a man's life are the moments when, strong in himself, he feels that the world lies before him. Gratified ambition may be the summer, but anticipation is the ardent spring-time of a man's career.

As Loder drove that night from Fleet Street to Grosvenor Square he realized this—though scarcely with any degree of consciousness—for he was no accomplished self-analyst. But in a wave of feeling too vigorous to be denied he recognized his regained foothold—the step that lifted him at once from the pit to the pinnacle.

In that moment of realization he looked neither backward nor forward. The present was all-sufficing. Difficulties might loom ahead, but difficulties had but one object—the testing and sharpening of a man's strength. In the first deep surge of egotistical feeling he almost rejoiced in Chilcote's weakness. The more Chilcote tangled the threads of his life, the stronger must be the fingers that unravelled them. He was possessed by a great impatience; the joy the action was stirring in his blood.

Leaving the cab, he walked confidently to the door of Chilcote's house and inserted the latch-key. Even in this small act there was a grain of individual satisfaction. Then very quietly he opened the door and crossed the hall.

As he entered, a footman was arranging the fire that burned in the big grate. Seeing the man, he halted.

"Where is your mistress?" he asked, in unconscious repetition of his first question in the same house.

The man looked up. "She has just finished dinner, sir. She dined alone in her own room." He glanced at Loder in the quick, uncertain way that was noticeable in all the servants of the household when they addressed their master. Loder saw the look and wondered what depth of curiosity it betrayed, how much of insight into the domestic life that he must always be content to skim. For an instant the old resentment against Chilcote tinged his exaltation, but he swept it angrily aside. Without further remark he began to mount the stairs.

Gaining the landing, he did not turn as usual to the door that shut off Chilcote's rooms, but moved onward down the corridor towards Eve's private sitting-room. He moved slowly till the door was reached; then he paused and lifted his hand. There was a moment's wait while his fingers rested on the handle; then a sensation he could not explain—a reticence, a reluctance to intrude upon this one precinct—caused his fingers to relax. With a slightly embarrassed gesture he drew back slowly and retraced his steps.

Once in Chilcote's bedroom, he walked to the nearest bell and pressed it. Renwick responded, and at sight of him Loder's feelings warmed with the same sense of fitness and familiarity that the great bed and sombre furniture of the room had inspired.

But the man did not come forward as he had expected. He remained close to the door with a hesitation that was unusual in a trained servant. It struck Loder that possibly his stolidity had exasperated Chilcote, and that possibly Chilcote had been at no pains to conceal the exasperation. The idea caused him to smile involuntarily.

"Come into the room, Renwick," he said. "It's uncomfortable to see you standing there. I want to know if Mrs. Chilcote has sent me any message about tonight."

Renwick studied him furtively as he came forward. "Yes, sir," he said. "Mrs. Chilcote's maid said that the carriage was ordered for ten-fifteen, and she hoped that would suit you." He spoke reluctantly, as if expecting a rebuke.

At the opening sentence Loder had turned aside, but now, as the man finished, he wheeled round again and looked at him closely with his keen, observant eyes.

"Look here," he said. "I can't have you speak to me like that. I may come down on you rather sharply when my—my nerves are bad; but when I'm myself I treat you—well, I treat you decently, at any rate. You'll have to learn to discriminate. Look at me now!" A thrill of risk and of rulership passed through him as he spoke. "Look at me now! Do I look as I looked this morning—or yesterday?"

The man eyed him half stupidly, half timidly.

"Well?" Loder insisted.

"Well, sir," Renwick responded, with some slowness, "you look the same—and you look different. A healthier color, perhaps, sir—and the eye clearer." He grew more confident under Loder's half-humorous, half-insistent gaze. "Now that I look closer, sir—"

Loder laughed. "That's it!" he said. "Now that you look closer. You'll have to grow observant—observation is an excellent quality in a servant. When you come into a room in future, look first of all at me—and take your cue from that. Remember that serving a man with nerves is like serving two masters. Now you can go; and tell Mrs. Chilcote's maid that I shall be quite ready at a quarter-past ten."

"Yes, sir. And after that?"

"Nothing further. I shan't want you again tonight." He turned away as he spoke, and moved towards the great fire that was always kept alight in Chilcote's room. But as the man moved towards the door he wheeled back again. "Oh, one thing more, Renwick! Bring me some sandwiches and a whiskey." He remembered for the first time that he had eaten nothing since early afternoon.

At a few minutes after ten Loder left Chilcote's room, resolutely descended the stairs and took up his position in the hall. Resolution is a strong word to apply to such a proceeding, but something in his bearing, in the attitude of his shoulders and head, instinctively suggested it.

Five or six minutes passed, but he waited without impatience; then at last the sound of a carriage stopping before the house caused him to lift his head, and at the same instant Eve appeared at the head of the staircase.

She stood there for a second, looking down on him, her maid a pace or two behind, holding her cloak. The picture she made struck upon his mind with something of a revelation.

On his first sight of her she had appealed to him as a strange blending of youth and self-possession—a girl with a woman's clearer perception of life; later, he had been drawn to study her in other aspects—as a possible comrade and friend; now for the first time he saw her as a power in her own world, a woman to whom no man could deny consideration. She looked taller for the distance between them, and the distinction of her carriage added to the effect. Her black gown was exquisitely soft—as soft as her black hair; above her forehead was a cluster of splendid diamonds shaped like a coronet, and a band of the same stones encircled her neck. Loder realized in a glance that only the most distinguished of women could wear such ornaments and not have her beauty eclipsed. With a touch of the old awkwardness that had before assailed him in her presence he came slowly forward as she descended the stairs.

"Can I help you with your cloak?" he asked. And as he asked it something like surprise at his own timidity crossed his mind.

For a second Eve's glance rested on his face. Her expression was quite impassive, but as she lowered her lashes a faint gleam flickered across her eyes; nevertheless, her answer, when it came, was studiously courteous.

"Thank you," she said, "but Marie will do all I want."

Loder looked at her for a moment, then turned aside. He was not hurt by his rebuff; rather, by an interesting sequence of impressions, he was stirred by it. The pride that had refused Chilcote's help and the self-control that had refused it graciously moved him to admiration. He understood and appreciated both by the light of personal experience.

"The carriage is waiting, sir," Crapham's voice broke in.

Loder nodded, and Eve turned to her maid. "That will do, Marie," she said. "I shall want a cup of chocolate when I get back—probably at one o'clock." She drew her cloak round, was of the open hall door—Crapham in his sombre livery and the maid in her black dress, both silhouetted against the dark background of the hall; then, as the carriage moved forward smoothly and rapidly, he leaned back in his seat and closed his eyes.

During the first few moments of the drive there was silence. To Loder there was a strange, new sensation in this companionship, so close and yet so distant. He was so near to Eve that the slight fragrant scent from her clothes might almost have belonged to his own. The impression was confusing yet vaguely delightful. It was years since he had been so close to a woman of his own class—his own caste. He acknowledged the thought with a curious sense of pleasure. Involuntarily he turned and looked at her.

She was sitting very straight, her fine profile cut clear against the carriage window, her diamonds quivering in the light that flashed by them from the street. For a space the sense of unreality that had pervaded his first entrance into Chilcote's life touched him again, then another and more potent feeling rose to quell it. Almost involuntarily as he looked at her his lips parted.

"May I say something?" he asked.

Eve remained motionless. She did not turn her head, as most women would have done. "Say anything you like," she said gravely.

"Anything?" He bent a little nearer, filled again by the inordinate wish to dominate.

"Of course."

It seemed to him that her voice sounded forced and a little tired. For a moment he looked through the window at the passing lights; then slowly his gaze returned to her face.

"You look very beautiful to-night," he said. His voice was low and his manner unemotional, but his words had the effect he desired.

She turned her head, and her eyes met his in a glance of curiosity and surprise.

Slight as the triumph was, it thrilled him. The small scene with Chilcote's valet came back to him; his own personality moved him again to a reckless determination to make his own voice heard. Leaning forward, he laid his hand lightly on her arm.

"Eve," he said, quickly—"Eve, do you remember—" Then he paused and withdrew his hand. The horses had slackened speed, then stopped altogether as the carriage fell into line outside Bramfell House.

Her black gown was exquisitely soft.

CHAPTER XIV

LODER entered Lady Bramfell's feeling far more like an actor in a drama than an ordinary man in a peculiar situation. It was the first time he had played Chilcote to a purely social audience, and the first time for many years that he had rubbed shoulders with a well-dressed crowd ostensibly brought together for amusement. As he followed Eve along the corridor that led to the reception-rooms he questioned the reality of the position again and again; then abruptly, at the moment when the sensation of unfamiliarity was strongest, a cheery voice hailed him, and, turning, he saw the square shoulders, light eyes, and pointed mustache of Lakely, the owner of the St. George's Gazette.

At the sight of the man and the sound of his greeting his doubts and speculations vanished. The essentials of life rose again to the position they had occupied three weeks ago, in the short but strenuous period when his dormant activities had been stirred and he had recognized his true self. He lifted his head unconsciously, the shade of misgiving that had crossed his confidence passing from him as he smiled at Lakely with a keen, alert pleasure that altered his whole face.

Eve, looking back, saw the expression. It attracted and held her, like a sudden glimpse into a secret room. In all the years of her marriage, in the months of her courtship even she had never surprised the look on Chilcote's face. The impression came quickly, and with it a strange, warm rush of interest that receded slowly, leaving an odd sense of loneliness. But, at the moment that the feeling came and passed, her attention was claimed in another direction. A slight, fair-haired boy forced his way towards her through the press of people that filled the corridor.

"Mrs. Chilcote!" he exclaimed. "Can I believe my luck in finding you alone?"

Eve laughed. It seemed that there was relief in her laugh. "How absurd you are, Bobby!" she said, kindly. "But you are wrong. My husband is here—I am waiting for him."

Blessington looked round. "Oh;" he said. "Indeed!" Then he relapsed into silence. He was the soul of good-nature, but those who knew him best knew that Chilcote's summary change of secretaries had rankled. Eve, conscious of the little jar, made haste to smooth it away.

"Tell me about yourself," she said. "What have you been doing?"

Blessington looked at her, then smiled again, his buoyancy restored. "Doing?" he said. "Oh, calling every other afternoon at Grosvenor Square—only to find that a certain lady is never at home."

At his tone Eve laughed again. The boy, with his frank and ingenuous nature, had beguiled many a dull hour for her in past days, and she had missed him not a little when his place had been filled by Greening.

"But I mean seriously, Bobby. Has something good turned up?"

Blessington made a wry face. "Something is on its way—that's why I am on duty to-night. Old Bramfell and the pater are working it between them. So if Lady Bramfell or Lady Astrupp happen to drop a fan or a handkerchief this evening, I've got to be here to pick it up. See?"

"As you picked up my fans and handkerchiefs last year—and the year before?" Eve smiled.

Blessington's face suddenly looked grave. "I wish you hadn't said that," he said. Then he paused abruptly. Out of the hum of talk behind them a man's laugh sounded. It was not loud, but was a laugh that one seldom hears in a London drawing-room—it expressed interest, amusement, and in an inexplicable way it seemed also to express strength.

Eve and Blessington both turned involuntarily.

"By Jove!" said Blessington.

Eve said nothing.

Loder was parting with Lakely, and his was the laugh that had attracted them both. The interest excited by his talk was still reflected in his face and bearing as he made his way towards them.

"By Jove!" said Blessington again. "I never realized that Chilcote was so tall."

Again Eve said nothing. But silently and with a more subtle meaning she found herself echoing the words.

Until he was quite close to her, Loder did not seem to see her. Then he stopped quietly.

"I was speaking to Lakely," he said. "He wants me to dine with him one night at Cadogan Gardens."

But Eve was silent, waiting for him to address Blessington. She glanced at him quickly, but though their eyes met he did not catch the meaning that lay in hers. It was a difficult moment. She had known him incredibly, almost unpardonably, absent-minded but it had invariably been when he was suffering from "nerves," as she phrased it to herself. But to-night he was obviously in the possession of unclouded faculties. She colored slightly and glanced under her lashes at Blessington. Had the same idea struck him, she wondered? But he was studiously studying a suit of Chinese armor that stood closely in a niche of the wall.

"Bobby has been keeping me amused while you talked to Mr. Lakely," she said pointedly.

Directly addressed, Loder turned and looked at Blessington. "How d'you?" he said with doubtful cordiality. The name of Bobby conveyed nothing to him.

To his surprise, Eve looked annoyed, and Blessington's fresh-colored face deepened in tone. With a slow, uncomfortable sensation he was aware of having struck a wrong note.

There was a short, unpleasant pause. Then, more by intuition than actual sight, Blessington saw Eve's eyes turn from him to Loder, and with quick tact he saved the situation.

"How d'you do, sir?" he responded, with a smile. "I congratulate you on looking so—so uncommon well. I was just telling Mrs. Chilcote that I hold a commision for Lady Astrupp to-night. I'm a sort of scout at present—reporting on the outposts." He spoke fast and without much meaning, but his boyish voice eased the strain.

Eve thanked him with a smile. "Then we mustn't interfere with a person on active service," she said. "Besides, we have our own duties to get through." She smiled again, and, touching Loder's arm, indicated the reception-rooms.

To be continued.

MEN'S U. S. ARMY MUNSON-LAST SHOES AT $2.95
Sizes 5½ to 12.
Never again will you be able to buy these shoes at such a low price. We were lucky in finding a manufacturer, who was overstocked with them, and needed ready cash, so we bought them at almost one-half of the regular price. This shoes is made over the U. S. Army Munson-last, with extra heavy stitching; special grained chrome brown leather used thruout. An ideal shoe for workmen, farmers, icemen, postmen, carpenters and motormen, who are obliged to be on their feet all day.
Send correct size. Pay postman $2.95 on delivery, or send us a money order.
If you are not satisfied with these shoes after you examine them, we will promptly refund your money.

RESOLUTION OF INTENTION
NO. 1826

A RESOLUTION OF THE COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF GLENDALE DECLARING ITS INTENTION TO IMPROVE A PORTION OF MARYLAND AVENUE AND CERTAIN STREETS AND ALLEYS INTERSECTING AND TERMINATING THEREIN IN THE CITY OF GLENDALE AND DESCRIBING THE DISTRICT TO BE ASSESSED TO PAY THE COSTS AND EXPENSES OF SAID IMPROVEMENT AND PROVIDING BONDS FOR THE PAYMENT OF SAME.

BE IT RESOLVED BY THE COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF GLENDALE:

SECTION 1. That the public interest and convenience require and it is the intention of the Council of the City of Glendale to order the following work and improvement to be done, to-wit:

First: That ornamental concrete lighting posts be erected at intervals of approximately one hundred and five (105) feet on both sides of Maryland Avenue between the northerly line of Wilson Avenue and the northerly line of Broadway; and at intervals of approximately one hundred and five (105) feet on both sides of Maryland Avenue between the southerly line of Broadway and the southerly line of Harvard Street; that each of said posts be equipped with incandescent lamps, and the necessary wires, globes and fixtures; that conduits and wires be laid along said Maryland Avenue and that cable be laid along Broadway, all for the purpose of lighting said Maryland Avenue with electricity. Said work shall be done in accordance with Plan No. 607, Plan No. 615 and Specifications for said work adopted by the Council of the City of Glendale and known as Specifications No. 52.

SECTION 2. That said contemplated work or improvement in the opinion of said Council is of more than local or ordinary public benefit and will affect and benefit the lands and district hereinafter described, and said Council hereby declares that the district in said City of Glendale benefited by said work or improvement and to be assessed to pay the costs and expenses thereof, is all that portion of said City included within the following exterior boundary lines, to-wit:

Beginning at the southwest corner of Lot 6, Block 57, Campbell and Thompson Tract, as the same is recorded in Book 9, Page 56, of Maps, Records of Los Angeles County, California; thence northerly along the westerly lines of Lots 6, 7, 8, 9 and 10 of said Block 57, to the southerly line of Lot 19, Tract No. 618, as the same is recorded in Book 15, Page 108 of Maps, Records of aforementioned county; thence westerly along the southerly line of said Lot 19, to the southwesterly corner thereof; thence northerly along the westerly lines of Lots 19 to 11, both inclusive, of said Tract No. 618, to the northwesterly corner of said Lot 11; thence northeasterly in a direct line across an alley to the southwesterly corner of Lot 10 of said Tract No. 618; thence northerly along the westerly line of said Lot 10 to the northwesterly corner thereof; thence northwesterly in a direct line across Broadway to the southwesterly corner of Lot 12, W. S. Knott Tract, as the same is recorded in Book 7, Page 32 of Maps, Records of aforementioned county; thence northerly along the westerly line of said Lot 12, to the southerly line of Lot 9, of said W. S. Knott Tract; thence westerly along the southerly line of said Lot 9 to the southwesterly corner thereof; thence northerly along the westerly lines of Lots 9 to 1, both inclusive, of said W. S. Knott Tract, to the northwesterly corner of said Lot 1; thence northeasterly in a direct line across Wilson Avenue to the southwesterly corner of Lot 12, Block 5, Glendale Boulevard Tract, as the same is recorded in Book 5, Page 167 of Maps, Records of aforementioned county; thence easterly along the southerly line of said Lot 12, to the southeasterly corner thereof; thence southeasterly in a direct line across Wilson Avenue to the northeasterly corner of Lot 13, of aforementioned W. S. Knott Tract; thence southerly along the easterly lines of Lots 13 to 21, both inclusive of said W. S. Knott Tract, to the southeasterly corner of said Lot 21; thence westerly along the southerly line of said Lot 21 to the northeasterly corner of Lot 22 of said W. S. Knott Tract; thence southerly along the easterly line of said Lot 22 to the southeasterly corner thereof; thence easterly along the northerly line of Broadway, across all intersecting streets and alleys to the northwest corner of Broadway and Kenwood Street; thence southerly in a direct line across Broadway to the southwest corner of Broadway and Kenwood Street; thence westerly along the southerly line of Broadway across all intersecting streets and alleys to the northeasterly corner of Lot 6, Block 58, Town of Glendale, as the same is recorded in Book 21, Page 96 of the Miscellaneous Records of aforementioned County; thence southerly along the easterly line of said Lot 6, to the northerly line of Lot 8, of said Block 50 of said Town of Glendale; thence easterly along the northerly line of said Lot 8, to the northeasterly corner thereof; thence southerly along the easterly lines of Lots 8, 10, 12, 14, 16 and 18 of said Block 58, to the southeasterly corner of said Lot 18; thence westerly along the southerly line of said Lot 18 to the northeasterly corner of Lot 24, of said Block 58; thence southerly along the easterly line of said Lot 24 and along the southerly prolongation thereof, crossing Harvard Street, to the southerly line of Harvard Street; thence westerly along the southerly line of Harvard Street and across an intervening alley to the southerly prolongation of the westerly line of Lot 6, Block 57, of said Campbell & Thompson Tract; thence northerly along said southerly prolongation to the point of beginning, excepting therefrom any portion of any public street or alley which may be included in the above-described district.

Reference is hereby made to Plan No. 607-A approved by the Council of the City of Glendale, and now on file in the office of the City Engineer, which indicates by a red boundary line the extent of the territory to be included in said assessment district and which said plan shall govern for all details as to the extent of the said assessment district.

Reference is hereby made to license agreement dated February 14, 1923, by and between the American Cement Products Company, the owner of the patent rights for the construction of Marbelite Type No. 1110 cement concrete lighting posts, which said agreement is on file in the office of the City Clerk of the City of Glendale.

SECTION 3. That pursuant to the act of the Legislature of the State of California, approved February 27, 1893, and the acts amendatory thereto, serial bonds bearing interest at the rate of seven (7) per cent per annum shall be issued to represent assessments of Twenty-five ($25.00) Dollars or over for the costs of said work or improvements; said serial bonds shall extend over a period ending nine (9) years from and after the second day of January, next succeeding date of said bonds and an even annual proportion of the principal sum thereof shall be payable by coupon on the second day of January, every year after their date, until the whole is paid; and the interest shall be payable semi-annually by coupon on the second days of January and July, respectively, of each year, at the rate of seven (7) per cent per annum on all sums unpaid, until the whole of said principal and interest is paid.

SECTION 4. The City Engineer is directed to make a diagram of the property affected or benefitted by the proposed work or improvement as described. Such diagram shall show each separate lot, piece or parcel of land, the area in square feet of each of such lots, pieces of parcels of land, and the relative location of the same to the work proposed to be done; all within the limits of the assessment district, and such other matters as are required by law.

SECTION 5. All Plans referred to herein are on file in the office of the City Engineer of said City. All Specifications referred to herein are on file in the office of the City Clerk of said City. Said Plans and Specifications are hereby referred to for a more particular description of said work and made a part hereof.

SECTION 6. The Glendale Daily Press, a daily newspaper of general circulation, published and circulated in said City of Glendale, is hereby designated as the newspaper in which this Resolution of Intention shall be published in the manner and by the persons required by law, and in which the Street Superintendent shall publish notice of the passage of this Resolution of Intention.

SECTION 7. The Street Superintendent of said City of Glendale is hereby directed to post notices of the passage of this Resolution of Intention in the manner and in the form required by law, and to cause a similar notice to be published by two insertions in said newspaper in the manner required by law.

SECTION 8. The City Clerk of said City of Glendale is hereby directed to post this Resolution of Intention conspicuously for two days on or near the chamber door of the said Council and to cause the same to be published by two insertions in the manner required by law, in said newspaper, and also to mail, postage prepaid, to each property owner whose property is to be assessed to pay the cost and expenses of said improvement, a postal card containing notice of the passage of this Resolution of Intention, and calling attention to the fact that said property is to be assessed for said improvement, and such other matters as are required by law.

Adopted and approved this 23rd day of February, 1923.

RESOLUTION NO. 1836

A RESOLUTION OF THE COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF GLENDALE ORDERING CERTAIN IMPROVEMENTS TO BE MADE ON PORTIONS OF MOUNTAIN STREET, WESTERN AVENUE, WINCHESTER AVENUE AND TENTH STREET, AND CERTAIN STREETS AND ALLEYS INTERSECTING THEREWITH IN THE CITY OF GLENDALE.

BE IT RESOLVED BY THE COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF GLENDALE:

SECTION 1. That the improvement herein described is required by the public interest and convenience, and the Council of the City of Glendale, State of California, hereby orders the improvement to be made on portions of and certain streets and alleys intersecting therewith in the City of Glendale, described in Resolution of Intention No. 1797, passed by said Council on the 25th day of January, 1923, to which Resolution reference is hereby made for a description of said work.

SECTION 2. The district to be assessed to pay the cost and expenses of said work and improvement is described in said Resolution of Intention No. 1797, to which said Resolution reference is hereby made for further description of said assessment district.

SECTION 3. Bonds will be issued as provided for in said Resolution of Intention No. 1797.

SECTION 4. The Glendale Daily Press, a daily newspaper of general circulation, published and circulated in said City of Glendale, is hereby designated as the newspaper in which this Resolution and notice inviting street work proposals shall be published in the manner and form and by the persons required by law.

SECTION 5. The City Clerk of the City of Glendale is hereby directed to post conspicuously for five days on or near the chamber door of the Council, in the manner and form required by law, a notice with Specifications, inviting street work proposals or bids for doing said work; and said City Clerk is hereby directed to publish for two days in said newspaper hereby designated for that purpose, as aforesaid, in the manner and in the form required by law, a notice of said work inviting sealed proposals or bids for doing said work, and referring to the Specifications posted or on file.

Said notice shall require all proposals or bids offered to be accompanied by a certified check or bond, either, as prescribed by law, and for an amount not less than ten per cent of the aggregate of the proposal. Said City Clerk is also hereby directed to publish this Resolution for two days, in the manner required by law, in said newspaper designated for that purpose, as aforesaid.

Adopted and approved this 1st day of March, 1923.

NEW PACIFIC CONTINENT IS GROWING

SANTA CLARA, Cal., March 5 (A. P.).—If it is true that a new continent is forming in the Pacific ocean, as claimed by scientists, as the result of recent earthquakes in Hawaii and Japan, it will take more than 1,000 years before it breaks the surface, according to Rev. J. S. Ricard, S. J., director of the University of Santa Clara observatory.

"It is said that solar changes cause the upheavals, but solar changes are now at an extreme minimum," said Father Ricard, who first came into national prominence due to his popularization of the sun-spot theory of weather forecasting. He said:

"But it is true that sunspots produce weather changes and seismic troubles. Some persons don't seem to know how tidal waves are made and they fear a disastrous tidal wave for the North American continent. Earthquakes make tidal waves by lifting or letting down the ocean bottom. The sun and moon acting together at an angle of 45 degrees also have something to do with tidal waves.

"However, I think there is no evidence of a tidal wave disastrous to the North Pacific coast."

VIGILANTE FORCE ORGANIZED IN BUFFALO

BUFFALO, March 5 (A. P.).—This city has a full-fledged vigilant committee with a membership of several hundred. The members do not wear masks nor do night-riding, but form a very earnest organization that believes it has a mission for better citizenship and law-observance.

The committee was formed by students of Lafayette high school after a number of boys of the institution had been arrested and convicted of stealing automobiles for joy rides. One case resulted in the slaying of a police officer who tried to arrest a trio of boys in a stolen car.

Repeated offenses by Lafayette boys, the student body and faculty decided, were giving the school a "black eye," and plans were discussed at assembly to break up the wave of lawlessness. The outcome was the vigilant committee, an oath-bound organization for law enforcement and the protection of the school name.

Offenders are brought before the Vigilants for trial, but sentences imposed, if any, are carried out by the faculty.

You can always have what you want by wanting modestly.

Foley's Friendly Fancies

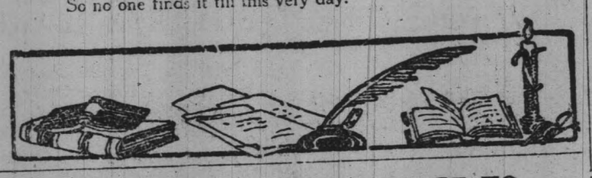
JAMES W. FOLEY

THE ASPIRATIONS OF YOUTH

I'd rather be a pirate chief than go
To school all day and learn why things are so,
Or be a captain of some robber band
Known far and wide all over the broad land
And help to capture some rich banker who
Had robbed the widows and the orphans too,
And keep him in some dungeon till he told
Where he had hid his groaning hoard of gold,
And after we had robbed him of his store
Of wealth tell him to go and sin no more.

Oh, if you are a pirate and can ride
The wave in your stout ship and get a bride
From some old English frigate filled with rum,
And missionaries all a-going from
Their native shores to heathen lands to take
These blessings to the heathen for the sake
Of their dear souls which are not saved! And when
You'd drunk the rum all up and made the men
All walk the plank you'd scuttle her and fly
Your skull and cross-bones to the southern sky.

Then when you made your fortune you could buy
Some rare old country place somewhere and die
With friends and neighbors sitting all about
Your bed and relatives all finding out
How much you're worth and wondering if you
Forgot them in your will like rich men do
When you're in need of money. But you'd hide
Your wealth upon some island at low tide
In a big chest before you passed away,
So no one finds it till this very day.



BUENOS AIRES TO TAKE THE AIR

BUENOS AIRES, March 5 (A. P.)—The big, high power wireless station at Monte Grande, near Buenos Aires, the first South American station in the international commercial radio system, is almost completed, and it is announced that service will begin in June or July next. It will place Argentina in direct wireless communication with the United States for the first time, as well as with Europe. Radio engineers say there are two strange, static "dead areas," one near the equator off Brazil, and one in the South Atlantic, which only a station equipped like that at Monte Grande can overcome.

The new station has been built entirely with American materials. All that remains unfinished are the control lines from Monte Grande into the city, a distance of 24 kilometers, which will be placed in underground conduits leading to the company's office in the business center.

CAMBRIDGE TO BOW TO WOMAN

LONDON, March 5 (A. P.)—It is inevitable that Cambridge will some day allow degrees to women, in the opinion of Miss Blanche A. Clough, retiring principal of Newnham college. The university cannot forever resist the pressure to open its doors to girl students. "We only want permission for a limited number of selected girls to be able to study under the best conditions," Miss Clough declares. "The average amount of study done by women students is greatly in excess of that done by men.

"The girl under-graduates of today," Miss Clough says, also, "are quite as nice as those of 30 years ago. Smoking and games have not done them any harm. I see no objection to girls playing football if they wish to do so."

Those who send their good money to others for get-rich-quick information enable the others to get rich without any information.

BRAIN OR HEART CONTROL? WHICH ASKS DR. FUNK

Speaking on the subject of "Brain or Heart Control, Which?" Dr. Funk said, at the First Lutheran church, yesterday:

"We are often told that it is the purpose of the Church to produce character. That is true in a sense. But the word 'character' is a good deal like some of these creeds; it is too abstract, and has no heart in it. Moreover, there is no such word in the Bible. I have read that Good Book from one end to the other, but have never found that word yet.

"No, 'character' may be very correct, but it is too cold. It is too much like 'ethical culture'; your heart does not warm up to it. Many have revolted from this conception of religion and have gone to the opposite extreme, where emotionalism, fanaticism and all sorts of vagaries abound. Do Lutherans believe in experimental religion? We hear that question raised again and again. Well, that depends on what you mean by experimental religion. If you mean an emotional, distorted type of religion that many people have in some of these modern revivals, where they have visions and see strange things; or these high-pressure evangelistic campaigns, where they must hit the saw-dust trail; then we do not have that kind of experimental religion.

"But Lutherans do believe strongly in a religion of the heart. We want no cold, feelingless religion. We believe that a Christian becomes a new creature in Christ Jesus. Our church teaches the absolute need of the forgiveness of sins, the need of daily repentance toward God, and faith in Jesus Christ. Everywhere, in the catechism, in our beautiful order of worship, and in the preaching of the Word, these needs are emphasized. But the chief emphasis is placed on justifying faith, 'for without faith it is impossible to please Him.' Here we have the surety of man's salvation, and not in the doctrine so often proclaimed by emotionalists, that we are saved by our feelings. We hold that true religion is a simple, natural, childlike thing. It is a continuous growth in grace, watered and nurtured by Word and Sacrament. My highest conception of Christ is to think of Him as being the heart of God. After all the final test is one of the heart. Then 'keep thy heart with all diligence: for out of it are the issues of life.' Yes, ours is a heart control: a religious feeling purified and controlled by the power of love, for God is love. Where there is justifying faith feeling will take care of itself, as it is not the cause but an effect of true religion."
